CONTENTS

OF

THE THIRD VOLUME.

FROM THE PEACE OF PARIS IN 1763, TO THE TREATY OF AMIENS IN 1802

---

LETTER I.

Act of the situation of Great Britain consequent on the termination of the late war. Approaching dissensions with the American colonies, 1764—1773.

---

CONSEQUENCES of the severe war in Germany and disbanding the armies.

Increase of taxation and crime

Emigration of a surplus population

Increase of luxury in Great Britain

Tendency of war to create lucrative offices in the state

Effects of the late war upon the landed interest

Emigrations from Ireland and Scotland to North America

A. D. 1764 Commodore Byron’s expedition in quest of new discoveries

Is followed by captains Walks, Carteret, Cook, and Mulgrave

Extent of the British empire at the accession of George III.

The British people dissatisfied with the late peace

A. D. 1765. Conduct of the government towards the American colonies

Attempt to impose the Stamp Act upon them

How received by the colonists

Conduct of the Americans in reference to this attempt

Importance of the colonies at this period

A view of their constitution and government

Produce of its soil and industry, &c.

A. D. 1766. Unwise proceedings of the British government towards her

Imposes a duty on Tea, which the colonists resist

Proceedings at Boston, where three cargoes of tea are thrown into the sea

Parliament suspends the privileges of the port of Boston

---revokes the original charter of Massachusetts’s Bay

---its conduct regarding Canada

A. D. 1772. The Americans convene a general Congress

A. D. 1773. Resolutions of the Congress

---New York attempts to compromise between the colonies and mother country

---The British parliament rejects the proffered mediation

---Reflections on this ill-fated rejection

---Lord North deaf to the warning voice of Chatham

---Some account of the English ministry

---Changes in administration

---A. D. 1768. Contest between Wilks and the ministry

---A. D. 1769. The former expelled the house of commons and outlawed

---Letter II.

View of the affairs of the Northern States of Europe—Russia—Prussia—Austria—Poland; from the treaty of Hubertusburg to the treaty of Trecchen, A. D. 1763—1769.

---A. D. 1762. Peter III. Czar of Muscovy, view of his reign

---Is succeeded by Catharine II. who reigns with firmness

---A. D. 1764. Death of the innocent Ivan, her rival in the throne

---Catharine prosecutes the undertakings of Peter the Great

---Casamities of Poland, 1764.

---Retrospect of the affairs of Poland—Death of Augustus III

---Treaty of alliance between Catharine and the king of Prussia

---Stipulations respecting Poland

---Various parties in Poland

---Tumultuous proceedings of the diet of Warsaw

---To counteract which, Catharine marches an army into Poland

---Election of Stanislaus Augustus

---A. D. 1766. The Clergy averse to his tolerant principles

---The king unable to resist their influence

---The Russian army invests Warsaw

---Domineering conduct of the Catholic party

---A. D. 1767. The Poles enter into confederations

---
CONTENTS.

The Russian army decides their deliberations 10
Grant of allowance to the king ibid.
The Pope remonstrates with him on accepting it ibid.
A civil war ensues ibid.
Dreadful ravages of the Haidamaks ibid.
Sufferings of the Jews in Poland 11
The Russians besiege Cracow ibid.
And are assisted by a reinforcement from Turkey ibid.
A. D. 1769. The king proclaims them rebels ibid.
Horrible state of Poland at this time ibid.
Austria inclines to assist the Poles ibid. — marches some troops towards Poland ibid.
Conduct of Frederick, king of Prussia ibid.
Many of the Poles abandon their country ibid.
A. D. 1772. Russia, Austria, and Prussia combine to dismember Poland 12
Reflections on the conduct of these three despotic powers ibid.
They disagree about the amount of individual spoliation ibid.
Amusing pleas of Frederick the Great, for his share 13
Weighty reasons urged by Austria ibid.
Empress of Russia seizes her portion without plea 14
The king and senate of Poland lament their hapless fate ibid.
The subjects of Poland reduced from eight millions to four ibid.
Proceedings of the diet in consequence 1b.

LETTER III.

Russian armies effect a junction and take Chotin 16
Occupation of Moldavia and Wallachia by the Russians ibid.
A. D. 1770. The Russian fleet appears in the Archipelago ibid.
Battle of Halil and defeat of the Turks 17
The Russians besiege Bender ibid.
After two months siege they storm the town and succeed ibid.
Successes on the part of the Russians in Moldavia, &c. ibid.
Description of the country—its produce &c. &c. ibid.
The seat of war transferred to the Peloponnesus ibid.
Insurrection of the Greek provinces against the Turks ibid.
A. D. 1771. The Russians receive a check and retreat to Navarino ibid.
Admiral Elphinstone defeats the Turkish fleet in the sea of Epidaurus 18
Description of the engagement ibid.
The English set fire to the Turkish fleet ibid.
A magazine at Tschesme blown up, and the town destroyed ibid.
The conquerors appear before Lemnos, and prepare to take the place ibid.
Lemnos relieved, and the Russian fleet retires to Paros. ibid.
The plague breaks out at Yassay, and is conveyed to the Russian army ibid.
It reaches Moscow and produces dreadful ravages 19
A. D. 1772. The Russians take possession of the Crimea ibid.
Particulars of Ali Bey ibid.
His contest with his brother-in-law Mohammed ibid.
Ali Bey is defeated in Egypt and his head sent to Constantinople ibid.
A. D. 1773. The Russians cross the Danube, but fail in the siege of Silistria 20
Some account of Mussum Oglu, a Turkish chief ibid.
The Russians compelled by him to retreat across the Danube ibid.
They fail in an attempt upon Euboea—but plunder Crete and Cyprus ibid.
Return of the Russian fleet to the Baltic ibid.
The Swedes threaten Russia ibid.
The Cossacks make incursions into the Russian provinces ibid.
A. D. 1774. Death of the grand Signor Mustafa ibid.
Is succeeded by his brother Abdulhamed ibid.
The Janissaries manifest a tumultuous disposition ibid.
Peace concluded between Russia and Turkey ibid.
LETTER IV.

Retrospect of the affairs of Sweden, A.D. 1761-1770—Abdication of the king Adolphus Frederick—Gustavus III. succeeds to the throne—Revolution of 1772—Dispute for the Bavarian succession. A.D. 1777.

Page
The constitution of Sweden aristocratical 21
Review of the politics of Sweden, from the time of Charles XII ibid.
The king reduced to a cypher in the state ibid.
Rapid decline of its manufactories ibid.
Complaints of the ascendancy of the aristocracy ibid.
The clergy complain of the loss of their tythes 22
General dissension prevails throughout the country ibid.
A.D. 1769. The king demands the summoning of a diet, which the senate refuses ibid.
The king resigns his regal authority ibid.
General anarchy prevails during nine days ibid.
A.D. 1770. Extraordinary diet assembled at Nykopling ibid.
Death of king Adolphus Frederick, February the 12th 1771 ibid.
Is succeeded by his son Gustavus III ibid.
Charles duke of Sudermania raises the standard of insurrection ibid.
Proceedings of the senate at this juncture ibid.
The king and the senate at issue 23
The citizens of Stockholm take the oath of allegiance to Gustavus ibid.
A new constitution is promulgated ibid.

DISPUTE FOR THE BAVARIAN SUCCESSION.

Death of Maximilian Joseph ibid.
Contested claims for a successor ibid.
Interference of Frederick, king of Prussia 24
Opposes the house of Austria, and takes part with the elector Palatine ibid.
Pleas of the court of Vienna ibid.
Who are indignant at the conduct of his Prussian majesty 25
The armies of Austria and Prussia are put in motion ibid.
Diplomatic proceedings between the two powers ibid.
A.D. 1778. The Prussian army advances into Bohemia ibid.
Result of the first campaign ibid.
Russia and France mediate between the parties ibid.
A.D. 1779. Treaty of Teschen signed ibid.
Conditions of the Treaty 26

LETTER V.

Affairs of Portugal—Administration of count D’Oeiras—Attempt to assassinate Joseph I.—Execution of the conspirators—War declared by Spain, A.D. 1762—Result of the campaign—Commerce and internal policy of the Portuguese government.

Page
Retrospective view of the Portuguese history 26
A.D. 1755. Earthquake at Lisbon ibid.
Its calamitous consequences 27
Intrepid behaviour of the count D’Oeiras ibid.
Who acquires the entire confidence of the king ibid.
The jealousy of the grandees inflamed ibid.
Hint at the Portuguese character ibid.
A horrible conspiracy plotting in secret ibid.
Character of the conspirators ibid.
Extensive ramifications of the plot 28
A.D. 1756. Attempted assassination of the king, September the 3rd ibid.
Prudent conduct of (Carvalho) count D’Oeiras on the occasion 29
He lulls suspicion asleep for six months ibid.
Gives a public ball in honour of his daughter’s marriage ibid.
At which all the conspirators are arrested ibid.
Execution of the principal conspirators 30
Expulsion of the Jesuits from the Portuguese territories ibid.
Spain prepares to attack Portugal ibid.
The court of Madrid jealous of British influence in Portugal 31
The Portuguese unprepared for war ibid.
The latter apply to England for assistance ibid.
Six thousand British troops sent to Lisbon ibid.
Character of the count de Lippe ibid.
A.D. 1762. Forty thousand Spaniards invade Portugal 32
Their extraordinary ignorance of the country ibid.
Progress of the campaign ibid.
The Spaniards lay siege to Almeida ibid.
Scandalous surrender of the place ibid.
The Spaniards march to Villa Velha and capture it 33
General Burgoyne attacks and captures Valenca d’Alcantara ibid.
Colonel Hamilton surprises the Spanish camp of Alvarez ibid.
The Spaniards grow sick of the campaign 34
Success of the Spanish arms in South America ibid.
Spain relinquishes all further attempts on Portugal ibid.
The Portuguese gainers by the war ibid.
Destruction of the custom house at Lisbon by fire ibid.
CONTENTS.

A. D. 1766. The parliament of Britanny dissolved for its spirited measures 41
The king holds a bed of justice at Paris, March the 3rd ibid.
Arbitrary conduct of Louis XV. ibid.
Remonstrance of the parliament of Rouen 42
The king’s answer and subsequent conduct ibid.
Trial of general Lally—his personal history ibid.
Histrial—condemnation—and execution ibid.
Reflections on this subject ibid.
Instructions of Louis XV. to his minister at Geneva 43
Estimates of the character and talents of the duke de Choiseul ibid.
His deference to England ibid.
His conduct in relation to the family compact ibid.
A. D. 1767. And the quarrel between the duke of Parma and the pope 44
The duke expels the Jesuits from his dominions ibid.
Bull of pope Clement XIII. ibid.
He rooses the courts of France, Spain, and Vienna against him ibid.
Louis XV. seizes on Avignon ibid.
The towns of Carpentras and Cavaillon are given up to the French 45
The duke of Modena lays claim to the duchy of Ferrara ibid.
The French flag hoisted at Bastia ibid.
Contest between the French troops and the Corsicans ibid.
Continued dissensions between Louis XV. and the parliament ibid.
A. D. 1768. Death of the queen of France 46
The king is applied unto to abolish the grand council of state ibid.
Difficulties arising from a scarcity of provisions ibid.
The parliament prohibits the exportation of corn ibid.
Chagrin of the monarch at their conduct ibid.
A. D. 1769. Embarrassed state of the finances of France ibid.
General pressure of trade and commerce 47
The duke de Choiseul obliged to violate the public faith ibid.
Bankruptcy of the East India company ibid.
Declining influence of the duke de Choiseul ibid.
Extraordinary exertion to regain his popularity ibid.
The king restores the parliament of Britanny ibid.
Struggle between the duke de Choiseul and the duke d’Aiguillon ibid.
A. D. 1770. Choiseul negotiates a treaty of marriage between the dauphin and Maria Antouette, archiduches of Austria 48
CONTENTS.

LETTER VIII.

Affairs of Spain—her government and resources. A. D. 1763—1780—Glance at Naples and Switzerland.

Extent of the Spanish territory in the Peninsula 56
Miserable effects of its government ibid.
Concordat obtained from Rome, regulating its ecclesiastical affairs ibid.
The tribunal of faith, and appointment of its officers 57
Proceedings of Don Carlos III. in the year 1761 ibid.
A superabundance of priests, monks, and nuns ibid.
Administration of the marquis de Squillace ibid.
Strictures on its government, laws, and usages ibid.
Sources of its revenue—its tax of a tenth penny 58
Its importations of gold and silver from South America ibid.
Duty on its exports to the colonies ibid.
Sundry articles of taxation, and their annual produce 59
Cursory remarks on its financial department ibid.
Revenues of the Archbishops and Bishops ibid.
Organization of the military department under Philip V. ibid.
—naval system 60
Statistical account of Naples ibid.
—Switzerland ibid.

LETTER IX.

The court of Rome and the Jesuits—Intrigues of the latter in various countries and their final expulsion from Europe. A. D. 1759—1773.

Reflections on the society of the Jesuits 61
Their union and order, and political influence under a religious guise ibid.
How treated in various countries of Europe ibid.
Conduct of the marquis Carrajal, in relation to the Jesuits 62
The Jesuits expelled from Europe found an asylum in Paraguay ibid.
—Remarkable account of the policy and flourishing condition of that republic 63
Spain and Portugal become jealous of them ibid.
Flourishing condition of Paraguay under the Jesuits ibid.
Become tributary to Spain and Portugal ibid.
Their country invaded by the latter ibid.
Instructions of the order detected by a Spanish officer ibid.
The sufferings to which the Jesuits were exposed 64
LETTER XI.

View of the affairs of Great Britain—Commencement and progress of the American war. A.D. 1773—1778.

Page
Arrangements between Great Britain and France at the peace of 1763 76
This period a new era in Agriculture with England ibid.
Her rapid increase in products of the soil, manufactures, &c. ibid.
A.D. 1771. Of Ireland and her linen trade 77
Of the province of Canada, and its fur trade ibid.
The mines of England—lead, copper, and coal works ibid.
A.D. 1775. The export trade of England ibid.
Product of her colonies in the West Indies ibid.
Commencement of the American war—battle of Lexington ibid.
Great Britain subsidizes the princes of Germany ibid.
Manner of conducting the American War ibid.
France and Spain join the Americans against England ibid.
American congress convened at Philadelphia ibid.
They prohibit all supplies to the New-Foundland fisheries ibid.
Generals Howe, Burgoyne, and Clinton arrive out at Boston ibid.
The province of Massachusetts Bay annul the charter of William and Mary 79
George Washington appointed to command the American forces ibid.
General Gage issues a proclamation on the part of England ibid.
Battle of Bunker's Hill ibid.
Washington arrives at Boston, and invests the town 80
The British governor of Virginia, abandons the province ibid.
Congress publishes a declaration of the causes of their revolt ibid.
Has recourse to a war de guerre, and gets possession of Boston ibid.
Effect of this on the cause of the colonists ibid.
Quebec blockaded for five months ibid.
Arrival of reinforcements from England and Ireland ibid.
Burgoyne opens the campaign successfully in Canada ibid.
Sir Henry Clinton proceeds to North Carolina ibid.
Attack on the city of Charleston unsuccessful 81
Return of the British troops to New York ibid.
CONTENTS.

Congress encouraged—and the colonists declare for independence 81
American declaration of independence, July the 4th, 1776 ibid.
Lord North's conciliatory bill, entrusted to general, and lord Howe 82
Their application to Washington and Franklin rejected ibid.
The British army landed on Long Island ibid.
Battle of Brookline—success of the British ibid.
*Retreat of the armies to New York 83
Washington declines to defend the town ibid.
The British occupy it—one third of the city burnt ibid.
The American army dispirited, and nearly annihilated ibid.
Capture of Rhode Island by the British ibid.
Lord Cornwallis proposes to follow up his success but not allowed ibid.
Capture of general Lee, in New Jersey ibid.
Lord Howe refuses to exchange him ibid.
Sign of a treaty of union and confederation between the thirteen colonies ibid.
Means taken to levy a new army ibid.
Internal dissensions among the colonists ibid.
New York proposes an alliance with Great Britain ibid.
Washington detaches part of his army that he may not check the project ibid.
Washington defeats the Hessians at Trenton—death of colonel Rall ibid.
France, Spain, &c. open their ports to American cruisers ibid.
A. D. 1777. Dilatory conduct of general Howe ibid.
Affair of Quibble town 85
General Howe proceeds to Pennsylvania ibid.
——— captures Philadelphia ibid.
Removal of congress to York town in Virginia ibid.

CHAPTER XII.

History of the American war continued—France and Spain take part with the colonies—England declares war against both countries—Important Naval operations, 1778—1779.

General Burgoyne takes the command of the army in Canada ibid.
Battle of Ticonderoga, and defeat of the provincials ibid.
The latter retreat to Saratoga ibid.
General Arnold reinforces them with a train of artillery ibid.
The British army in want of provisions ibid.
Burgoyne attacks the Americans at Stillwater ibid.
General Arnold wounded and the Americans retreat ibid.
Burgoyne changes his ground to occupy a strong post ibid.
The Americans take advantage of it to cut off his retreat 86
His army surrounded, and he calls a council of war ibid.
Burgoyne opens a treaty with General Gates ibid.
His whole army surrender prisoners of war ibid.
Proceedings in the British parliament, November 1777 ibid.
Discomfiture of lord North and his colleagues ibid.
Lord Chatham's motion for the orders given to Burgoyne ibid.
Exertions of the ministry to procure fresh supplies ibid.
A. D. 1778. Lord North proposes to parliament conciliatory measures ibid.
Disguise his own friends by his conduct in this instance ibid.
Mr Fox announces a treaty signed at Paris between France and America ibid.
Lord North announces this treaty to parliament ibid.
The duke of Richmond proposes the recognition of American independence ibid.
Lord Chatham's memorable opposition to this in the house of peers ibid.
Its illness, death, and funeral &c. ibid.
Arrival of general Burgoyne from America ibid.
Is refused admission to the royal presence ibid.
Renewal of the warlike operations in America ibid.
Sir II. Clinton succeeds sir W. Howe in the command of the army 89
Arrival of lord North's commissioners in America ibid.
Their propositions submitted to Congress and the president's answer ibid.
The British troops evacuate Philadelphia and retire to New York ibid.
Their extraordinary march from the Delaware to Sandy-Hook ibid.
The French fleet prepare for sea at Brest ibid.
Hesitation respecting the declaration of war ibid.
Capture of the Licorne and Belle Poule, two French frigates 90
Admiral Keppel returns to Portsmouth ibid.
The French and British fleets put to sea ibid.
They meet and manoeuvre on the 23rd of July, but separate without an engagement ibid.
Dissatisfaction of the country with the result ibid.
A French squadron sails from Toulon, under count D'Estaing ibid.
Their arrival at the capes of the Delaware ibid.
Lord Howe declines attacking them in the bay of Boston 91
——— resigns his commission and returns to England ibid.
CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
<th>Effects of these riots in discouraging public meetings</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>91</td>
<td>Admiral Geary falls in with a homeward bound fleet of French merchantmen, and captures twelve of them</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>The combined fleets capture five outward bound British East Indiamen</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>A British outward bound fleet captured off Newfoundland</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Admiral Darby succeeds Geary in the command of the channel fleet</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>He meets a French squadron but declines an engagement</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>96</td>
<td>Count Rochambeau arrives at Rhode Island with troops &amp;c.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Lord Cornwallis defeats general Gates at Camden</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Tarleton defeats Sumpter at the Forks of Catawba</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Disaster of colonel Ferguson, on the borders of North Carolina</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>97</td>
<td>Major André, a British officer, seized as a spy in the camp of general Arnold—is tried by a court martial and hanged</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Dreadful hurricane in the West Indies</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Great Britain and the Dutch provinces involved in hostilities</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>98</td>
<td>Reflections on the war with America</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. D. 1781.</td>
<td>The campaign in America opens favourably for England</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Speedy reverse of fortune to lord Cornwallis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Fox and Pitt press upon the minister the necessity of peace</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>The French make an attack on the island of Jersey</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>The inhabitants defend their country and destroy the French army</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Narrative of the siege of Gibraltar</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>General Elliot's gallant defence</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>100</td>
<td>The inhabitants retire from the town</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Elliot mediates an attack on the Spanish camp</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>His preparations for it</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Disposition and marching of his troops</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Surprises the Spanish camp—puts them to flight—and totally demolishes their works</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Progress of the war under lord Cornwallis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Defection of general Arnold from the American standard</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>101</td>
<td>Projected plan of the campaign of 1781</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Colonel Morgan defeats Tarleton at Fort Ninety six</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Lord Cornwallis defeats Tarleton at Fort</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Greene makes a stand near Guildford court house</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>After a well contested battle, the Americans retreat</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>The British unable to pursue them, and Cornwallis retires to Wilmington, in North Carolina</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ibid.</td>
<td>Distress to which lord Cornwallis finds himself reduced</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

LETTER XIII.

Disgraceful riots in London—Lord George Gordon committed to the Tower—1780—Progress of the war in America—Naval transactions—Hurricane in the West Indies—Declaration of war against Holland—Surge of Gibraltar.—1780—1781.

Meeting at Coachmaker's Hall |
Meeting in St. George's Fields |
A large mob assemble round the house of Commons |
Lord George Gordon presents a petition against concessions to the Catholics |
Troops of the line attempt to disperse the mob |
Demolition of the Catholic chapels in London |
Other outrages committed—Newgate prison burnt |
Also the Fleet—and King's Bench—thirty fires seen at once |
The military fire upon the mob—number of lives lost |
Supineness of the city magistrates |
Lord George Gordon seized and sent to the Tower |
LETTER XIV.

Naval Exploits of Great Britain—Proceedings in the British parliament—Resignation of lord North—Successes of admiral Rodney in the West Indies—Defeat of the combined fleet—Relief of Gibraltar—Preliminaries of Peace signed at Versailles, A. D. 1782—1783.

A. D. 1782, A large fleet from France sails to the West Indies

Sir Samuel Hood falls in with them near Antigua

The French armament attacks St. Lucia, but fails

Rodney proceeds from St. Eustatius in quest of them

The French attack the island of Tobago, and capture it

They sail from St. Domingo

Rodney returns to England—complaints against him

The country grows tired of the war

Assembling of parliament November 1781

Debates on the king's speech

Lord North's apology for continuing the war

How treated by Burke and Pitt

Debate on general Conway's motion for peace

The motion carried against the minister

Lord North linger's in office

The opposition force him to resign

Estimate of his lordship's talents and character

Sir H. Clinton superseded by sir Guy Carleton

The Spaniards capture the Bahamas

And mediate an attack on Jamaica

Serious apprehensions for its safety

Rodney sails from England for its relief

Engagement of the hostile fleets off the island of Dominique

Particulars of the action, and Rodney's victory

Severe loss on the part of the enemy

Losses of the Dutch in Africa and the East Indies

Naval exploits in the British channel

Loss of Rodney's prizes in a hurricane

Affecting loss of the Royal George, &c.

The siege of Gibraltar renewed

Extensive preparations for its capture

General Elliot's skilful defence

The destruction of the enemy's works

Captain Curtis and his gun-boats annoy the Spaniards

Their efforts to save the enemy

The Spaniards attempt to blockade the port

Lord Howe watches the combined fleets, and relieves Gibraltar
CONTENTS.

Offers them battle—a partial engagement ensues 116
Lord Howe baffles the enemy and returns to port 117
Reflections on the state of the war ibid.
Preliminaries of peace signed at Versailles, January the 20th, 1783 118
Terms of pacification ibid.
Definitive treaties with France, Spain, and America ibid.

LETTER XV.

State of France at the accession of Louis XVI.—Distressed condition of her finances—Ministerial changes, Maupeou, Turgot, Malesherbes, Necker, and Brienne—Opposition to their respective measures for relieving the embarrassments of the government—Necessity of a Revolution, A.D. 1789—1799.

Preliminary observations 113
Review of the reign of Louis XIV. ibid.
Privileges of the noblesse, and the clergy 119
Unequal distribution of the church revenues ibid.
Depressed state of the lower classes of society ibid.
Effects of the extravagance of the court ibid.
His despotic and arbitrary reign 120
Death of Louis XIV. and the new order of things which it gave rise to ibid.
State of the parliament of Paris at the accession of Louis XV. ibid.
The French people begin to think for themselves ibid.
Reflections on the power of opinion ibid.
The Tontine rises into dignity 121
State of France at the accession of Louis XV. ibid.
Sketch of his character and earlier part of his reign ibid.
His imprudent choice of Maurepas as Prime minister ibid.
Character of that minister 122
His successors in office and their measures ibid.
Turgot, Malesherbes, and Necker ibid.
Necker’s administration signalized by its economy 123
He becomes unpopular and retires ibid.
Imbecility of Louis XVI. and influence of the queen ibid.
Calonne becomes minister of Finance ibid.
Prodigality of his administration ibid.
The fall of Calonne, who is succeeded by the archbishop of Toulouse 124
Reflections on his administration ibid.
The assembly of Notables dissolved and exiled ibid.
It returns and compromises with the minister ibid.
Ministerial measures of the archbishop ibid.
The king and his parliament on various points ibid.

A demand for the convocation of the States general 125
The whole magistracy of France displaced to make room for a new judicial organization ibid.
General opposition to these measures throughout France ibid.
Increasing clamour for the convocation of the States-general ibid.
Brienne promises to convoke them and resigns his office ibid.
Remarks on his administration 126
Necker recalled to office ibid.
The opposition which he now had to encounter ibid.
He once more convokes the Notables ibid.
Plan for assembling the States-general ibid.
Opening of the States-general, 5th of May, 1789 127
Commencement of the French revolution ibid.

LETTER XVI.

Affairs of France, during the year, 1789—Opening of the States-general—Formation of the National Assembly—Insurrection of Paris—Formation of the National guard—Destruction of the Bastille.

Reflections on the evils attendant on Revolutions 127
These evils irreremediable 128
Attendant circumstances on the opening of the States-general ibid.
Description of the royal sitting ibid.
Address of the comte monarque, Louis XVI. ibid.
Speech of Barentin, keeper of the seals 129
Structures on the tendency of his speech ibid.
Speech of M. Necker on the occasion ibid.
Mistakes of the government respecting the convocation of the States-general 130
Impolitic conduct of the king ibid.
His irresolution, and the indecision of his measures ibid.
The court desires of annulling the States-general ibid.
Maneuvrings of the clergy and noblesse ibid.
The court seizes a coalition with them against the States-general 131
A struggle ensues between the different parties ibid.
Prudent conduct of the Commons ibid.
The National Assembly declared ibid.
The clergy and noblesse invited to assist in the verification 132
First decree of the National Assembly ibid.
Their conduct inspires the enthusiasm of the nation ibid.
Attempt to withdraw the king from the counsels of Necker ibid.
The monarch yields to the advice of a secret council ibid.
Want of energy in the conduct of Necker 133
Bailly made president of the National Assembly ibid.
CONTENTS.

Shutting up of the hall of the assembly 133
The National Assembly repair to the Tennis court ibid.
Their sittings made permanent, and their oath to give a constitution to France ibid.
Deprived of the Tennis court, the assembly meet in the church of St Louis ibid.
The clergy unite themselves with the National Assembly ibid.
The king appears in the assembly and annuls all its proceedings 134
He commands the deputies to separate and withdraw ibid.
Mirabeau's intrepid conduct on the occasion 135
The death blow is given to the royal authority ibid.
Vacillating conduct of the court respecting Necker ibid.
The duke of Orleans' party join the National Assembly ibid.
Abjures state to which the influence of the court is reduced ibid.
Louis XVI. is advised to employ force in order to arrest the progress of the revolution 136
The National Assembly commence their legislative functions ibid.
Addresses of congratulation sent them from the principal towns ibid.
The king assembles his troops at Versailles ibid.
Paris is surrounded with an armed force ibid.
The assembly demand from the king their being withdrawn ibid.
He declines a compliance, and makes a strange proposal ibid.
Agitated state of Paris, and its devotion to the assembly ibid.
Meetings for public discussion at the Palais-Royal ibid.
The prisoners of the Abbaye are forced, and the prisoners liberated ibid.
Necker is removed from the ministry and exiled 136
Effect of this measure on the Parisians ibid.
Proposal of Camille Desmoulins ibid.
The citizens rush to arms ibid.
The bust of Necker and the duke of Orleans carried in triumph ibid.
The military attack the mob—conduct of the prince of Lambesc ibid.
The call to arms becomes general throughout Paris ibid.
Engagement between the French guards and Royal Germans 137
Consequence of the defection of the French guards and other troops of the line ibid.
Meetings of the citizens at the Hotel-de-Ville ibid.
Perilous nights of the 12th and 13th of July ibid.
Proceedings at Versailles—speeches of Mounier and Lally Tolendal ibid.

Insurrection of Paris announced—they send an address to the king 138
Spirited conduct of the assembly ibid.
They vote their sittings permanent ibid.
The citizens of Paris call for a supply of arms ibid.
Conduct of M. de Flerselles, provost of the city ibid.
Pillaging of the mob in quest of arms 139
Organization of the burgesses-militia ibid.
Enrollment of the citizens ibid.
Disappointment of the mob respecting a supply of arms ibid.
They give orders for fifty thousand pikes to be made ibid.
The people find a depot of arms in the Hotel of Invalids ibid.
Cannon planted for the defence of the city ibid.
A deputation is sent to the governor of the Bastille 140
The armed citizens march in great numbers to the Bastille ibid.
M. Delamare, the governor, declines a compliance with the request of the citizens ibid.
The multitude demand the surrender of the fortress ibid.
They seize the bridge, and are fired upon by the garrison ibid.
The Bastille is besieged, and the mob demands its surrender 141
Arrival of the French guards with cannon ibid.
The governor threatens to blow up the fortress, but is prevented ibid.
The besiegers take possession of the Bastille, and put the governor and others to death ibid.
Return of the mob to the Hotel-de-Ville ibid.
Flerselles provost of the city, is put to death 142
Measures for the defence of the city ibid.
Proceedings of the court at Versailles, who threaten vengeance to the Parisians ibid.
The delusion under which the court acted at this time ibid.
Preparations for an attack on the Parisians ibid.
Firmness of the National Assembly at this perilous crisis 143
Astonishment of the king on hearing of the destruction of the Bastille ibid.
Mirabeau's address to the deputies who were sent to the king ibid.
The king appears in the midst of the assembly ibid.
His sullen reception with that body 144
The declaration of his sentiments applauded ibid.
He proposes the recall of Necker, and consents to proceed to Paris, where he arrives at the head of the municipality and Parisian guard ibid.
CONTENTS.

Bailly tenders him the keys of the city 144
The monarch's reception at the Hotel-de-Ville ibid.
The testimonies of affection tendered him, and his return to Versailles ibid.
Dismissal of his counter revolutionary ministers, and departure of his brothers ibid.
Necker returns in triumph—his entry into Paris 145
He demands a general amnesty and becomes unpopular ibid.
Mistaken conduct of Mirabeau ibid.
Effects of the proceedings of the 14th of July, on the provinces ibid.
Proclamation of the National Assembly, and tribunal of the Chatelet ibid.
Proposal for the abolition of the privileged orders ibid.
Extent of these speculations ibid.
Medal struck in honour of Louis XVI. "the restorer of French liberty" 146
Effects of the night of the 4th of August ibid.
Review of the progress of the revolution, from the 5th of May to the 5th of August, 1789 ibid.

LETTER XVII.

View of the state of parties in France—The Constituent Assembly—The Clergy and the Noblesse—The Orleans party—Constitutional labours; declaration of rights; permanence and unity of the legislative body; royal sanction; external agitation; insurrection of the 5th and 6th of October, 1789—The king removes his residence to Paris ibid.

Effects of the revolution in the provinces 147
These evils not fairly chargeable on the National Assembly ibid.

Something of them must accompany all revolutions ibid.
The National Assembly comprised the ablest men in the nation ibid.
View of the parties into which it was divided ibid.
Abbe Maury and Cazalès represented the clergy and noblesse 148
The leading object of these two orators ibid.
The party of Necker and the ministry described ibid.
These latter termed the monarchists, or moderate party ibid.
The republican or national party 149
The leaders of this party described ibid.
Character and talents of Duport ibid.
— the abbe Sieyes 150
— Mirabeau ibid.
— the duke of Orleans ibid.
The assembly divided into committees 151
Renewal of the declaration of rights ibid.
On the organization of the legislative power ibid.
Of the power of the sovereign in the state ibid.

Proposals for having two chambers rejected 152
This determination much censured ibid.
Debates on the royal sanction ibid.
Prevalence of debating clubs in Paris and their baneful influence 153
Discussions on the Veto, whether absolute or suspensive ibid.
The court avails itself of these agitations ibid.
The royal family meditate a flight to Metz ibid.
Preparations made for this event 154
Conduct of the queen in this instance ibid.
The fête given to the military, on the 1st of October at Versailles ibid.
Is renewed two days afterwards ibid.
Effect of these things on the Parisians ibid.
Insurrection at Paris on the 5th of October, want of bread ibid.
An immense mob proceeds to Versailles 155
Discussions of the assembly on the queen's conduct ibid.
Terror of the court on the arrival of the mob ibid.
The flight of the king prevented 156
Arrival of La Fayette with the army of Paris ibid.
He succeeds in re-establishing order at Versailles for the night ibid.
Attack on the king's palace the following morning ibid.
La Fayette disperses the assailants ibid.
The mob re-assembles, and demands to see the king ibid.
They insist on his going to Paris, with which he complies ibid.
La Fayette conciliates the body guard ibid.
The king and queen &c. arrive at Paris ibid.

LETTER XVIII.

Difficulties which the National Assembly had to encounter 157
Secessions of Mounier from the assembly ibid.
The National Assembly removes its sittings to the metropolis ibid.
The duke of Orleans exiled to England ibid.
The Parisians rendered tumultuous by the want of bread ibid.
Martial law proclaimed 158
Division of France into eighty-three departments, districts, and cantons ibid.
Manner of electing delegates ibid.
Regulations of the Commune ibid.
CONTENTS.

Some of the states protest against the division of the realm 139
Disaffection of the ancient régime 139
The noblesse and the clergy attack the new order of things 139
Financial difficulties which Necker had to surmount 139
Mirabeau obtains for him a financial dictatorship 139
A bold effort to ward off a national bankruptcy 139
The property of the church seized for the use of the state 139
The national bankruptcy 139
The abolition of tithes sanctioned by the archbishop of Paris. ibid.
Talleyrand proposes the confiscation of Ecclesiastical benefices ibid.
Violent clamours of the clergy against this measure ibid.
The treasury calls for the sale of church property ibid.
First issue of Assignats 161
Their favourable operation on the revolution at the moment ibid.
Conduct of the clergy on this occasion ibid.
The assembly propose a re-constitution of the church ibid.
The plan in detail 162
The decree passes, and the clergy withdraw from the assembly ibid.
A league formed between the clergy and the dissident noblesse ibid.
Their united efforts to oppose the projected reform ibid.
Speeches of Chapelier—Maury—Mirabeau, voting the session permanent 163
Counter revolutionary efforts out of the assembly ibid.
Correspondence of the count d’Artois ibid.
Equivocal and embarrassed conduct of the court ibid.
Mirabeau intrigues with it ibid.
Proceedings of the National Assembly ibid.
The sovereignty of the nation recognized ibid.
The power of war or peace vested in the king ibid.
Anniversary of the destruction of the Bastile, 14th of July ibid.
Decree of the abolition of titles, &c. &c. ibid.
Hostility of the aristocracy to this measure ibid.
Conduct of Louis XVI. on the 14th of July 145
Description of the fête of the Champ-de-Mars ibid.
Taking the oath of federation &c. ibid.
The king and his subjects apparently reconciled 166
Festivities prolonged after the 14th of July ibid.
Re-commencement of the hostility of parties ibid.
Necker quits his station in disgust, and retires from France 166
The noblesse pursue counter-revolutionary measures ibid.
They organize a plan of emigration ibid.
General Bouillé disaffected to the revolution, his conduct 167
Speculations of the aristocratical party, on the revolution ibid.
The pope refuses to sanction the alienation of church property and other things ibid.
The clergy required to take the civic oath, many refuse ibid.
Ejection of the nonconforming incumbents 168
Unpleasant consequences throughout the departments ibid.
Soberness of the people, and origin of clubs ibid.
The Jacobin club—the club of eighty-nine—Monarchic club, &c. ibid.
Distrust of the people, and their apprehension of a counter-revolution ibid.
Failure of an attempt to carry off the king 169
La Fayette disarms the counter-revolutionists ibid.
Reasons for thinking the king mediated an escape ibid.
Decree of the assembly to counterfeit it ibid.
Death of Mirabeau—his funeral—and estimate of his character ibid.
The National Assembly complete the reorganization of France 170

LETTER XIX.

A. D. 1790. Effects of the French revolution on the politics of Europe 170
Retrospect of the state of Europe previous to the revolution ibid.
Of Prussia and Russia at this period 171
The French revolution threatens all the monarchies of Europe ibid.
A. D. 1790. Formation of a general coalition ibid.
This measure encouraged by the emigrant princes ibid.
The count d’Artois and the emperor Leopold ibid.
A. D. 1791. Declaration of Mantua, May the 20th ibid.
Louis XVI. places great confidence in general Bouillé 172
The royal family make their escape on the 20th of June ibid.
Consternation of the Parisians on hearing it ibid.
Prudent conduct of the assembly ibid.
Arrival of the king and queen at Varennes 173
They are recognized and detained ibid.
Bouillé marches an army to release them ibid.
He falls in his object and quits the army and France ibid.
The royal pair return to Paris under arrest ibid.
Three commissioners from the assembly meet them at Epemay ibid.
The king provisionally suspended 173
Struggle of the republican and other parties ibid.
Commissaries appointed to interrogate Louis XVI. ibid.
Discussions on delivering in their report ibid.
Barnave’s speech on this occasion ibid.
The assembly decree the king’s abdication of the crown 174
Conduct of the republican party ibid.
La Fayette protects the assembly from its fury ibid.
His troops fire upon the mob and disperse them ibid.
Discomfiture of the emigrants on hearing of the king’s arrest ibid.
Meeting at Pilnitz, and the treaty entered into 175
The confederated princes issue a declaration ibid.
Effects of this declaration on the French people ibid.
The National Assembly terminates its labours ibid.
None of its members eligible to re-election — an unhappy measure ibid.
La Fayette and Bailly retire from their posts ibid.
Proceedings of the constituent assembly 176
The king’s suspension taken off, and Louis restored to power ibid.
He accepts the new constitution and pledges himself to support it ibid.
La Fayette obtains a decree of amnesty in favour of the king’s friends ibid.
Speech of Louis on dissolving the constituent assembly ibid.
His momentary popularity ibid.
Praises of the constituent assembly ibid.
Remarks on the constitution of 1791 177

LETTER XX.
The French Revolution continued—National legislative assembly—State of parties—The emigration and refractory clergy—War declared against Austria, A. D. 1792.

A. D. 1791. Institution of the National Legislative Assembly 178

Coolness between the king and assembly ibid.

Discussion on the way in which Louis should be addressed 178
First meeting between the king and the assembly 179
His majesty’s speech on opening the session ibid.
Composition of the assembly, and the factions opposed to it ibid.
The party of the Feuillans described ibid.
——Girondists do. 180
——Champ-de Mars ibid.
Difficulties which the Legislative Assembly had to encounter 181
Proceedings of the refractory clergy ibid.
Religious dissensions very prevalent ibid.
Revolts in the departments of Calvados and La Vendée ibid.
Brisot proposes to check the emigration ibid.
He is opposed by Isnard 182
Proceedings of the Constitutionalists ibid.
Decree of the assembly respecting the king’s eldest brother ibid.
The emigrants required to return, on pain of outlawry ibid.
Conduct of the monarch in these instances ibid.
He is supported by the Constitutionalists 183
The court intrigues—Bertrand de Molleville establishes a French club ibid.
The hands of the Constitutionalists weakened thereby ibid.
Ascendancy of the Girondists ibid.
Conduct of the electors of Treves, Mentz, &c. ibid.
The king is requested to interpose with those courts to disperse their meetings ibid.
Speech of Isnard in favour of the project 184
Decree of the assembly, and Vaublance address to the king ibid.
Louis XVI. promises a compliance ibid.
Military preparations are resorted to 185
Proceedings against the king’s three brothers ibid.
Three French armies marched to the frontiers ibid.
The elector of Treves retraces his steps ibid.
Austria supports the elector ibid.
She marches her armies to the frontier ibid.
The assembly demand from the emperor an explanation of his designs ibid.
Measures adopted against the members of the council ibid.
The king intimidated by these measures ibid.
He chooses his new ministers from among the Girondists ibid.
Names of the new ministers 186
Character of Dumouriez, minister for foreign affairs ibid.
——Roland, minister of the interior ibid.
The ministry termed by the court, the Sack Cullotes ministry ibid.
CONTENTS.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Death of the emperor Leopold, and accession of Francis II.</td>
<td>186</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Austria demands the re-establishment of the monarchy in France</td>
<td>187</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The prospect of war daily increases</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Louis XVI. appears in the assembly and reports on the state of the nation</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>War declared against Austria, 20th of April, 1792</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>LETTER XXI.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. D. 1792. The declaration of war favourably received in France</td>
<td>188</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arrangements for the campaign</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Appointment of the generals and their armies</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rochambeau and Dumouriez differ in their plans</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Disastrous sortie—the troops under Dillon are panic stricken, and massacre their commander</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The same happens to Biron and his army</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rochambeau resigns the command</td>
<td>189</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The French resolve to act upon the defensive</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Effect of this first check on the parties in France</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The court is suspected of sinister measures</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Proceedings of the assembly on this occasion</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Constitutionalists oppose their measures</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The refractory priests are banished</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conduct of Louis XVI.</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Roland sets before him his constitutional duties</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dumouriez countenances the king’s measures</td>
<td>190</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Louis dismisses his ministers, and chuses new ones</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He sends Mallet Dupan on a secret mission to the coalition</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The revolution retrogrades</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Active proceedings of the different clubs</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>La Fayette denounces the Jacobins</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Why now attack his character</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Girondists endeavour to support the king and constitution</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The multitude march to the hall of assembly</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>They are allowed to present an insurrectionary petition</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The mob quits the hall and marches to the king’s palace</td>
<td>191</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Extraordinary interview between the king and them</td>
<td>192</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pétion succeeds in dispersing the multitude</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Complaints against the authors of this tumult</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The generals wish to remove the king from Paris</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>La Fayette returns to Paris and appears in the assembly</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He is attacked by the Jacobin leaders</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His hopes now placed on the national guard</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His object is to rescue the king and disperse the Jacobin club</td>
<td>193</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He returns disappointed to the army</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Report of the state of France—the country in danger</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Speech of Vergniaud on this occasion</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Speech of Brissot, who attacks the conduct of the king</td>
<td>194</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The assembly proclaims the country to be in danger</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Measures taken for its defence</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pétion is deposed and restored</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The attacks on La Fayette increase daily</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hostilities break out among the parties</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>March of the Prussians, and the duke of Brunswick’s manifesto</td>
<td>195</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>State of the confederated armies, and of the French</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Duke of Brunswick’s plan of the campaign</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Substance of his manifesto</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>This document both violent and impolitic</td>
<td>196</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It hastens the fall of Louis XVI. and defeats the object of the coalition</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It united the discordant parties in France</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Jacobin party prepare for an insurrection in Paris</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Agitated state of the city</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The clubs discuss the dethronement of the king</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The assembly protect La Fayette from the Jacobins</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Sections demand the deposition of Louis, or threaten vengeance</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The civil authorities destitute of power</td>
<td>197</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Projected attack on the palace 10th of August</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The court apprized of its danger—its means of defence</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The insurrection commences at midnight</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Discussions of the legislative body</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pétion is removed, and Santerre takes command of the national guard</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The court regret the loss of Pétion</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The king reviews the national guard</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Unhappy situation of the monarch</td>
<td>198</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He is attacked by the insurgents—but escapes to his palace</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
CONTENTS.

The insurgents increase and arm themselves 198
Their advance to the Tuileries—and Rœder’s parley with them ibid.
Consternation of the king and his council ibid.
Rœder’s advice to the royal family ibid.
The queen’s behaviour at this juncture 199
The royal family leave the Tuileries, and are conducted to the hall of the assembly ibid.
Louis’s address on entering the hall ibid.
Vergniaud’s reply to the monarch ibid.
Conduct of the military and insurgents ibid.
Massacre of the Swiss guards ibid.
Confusion of the assembly—the fate of the monarchy decided 200
The assembly issue a proclamation ibid.
The mob demand the dethronement of the king ibid.
Vergniaud proposes the convocation of a national convention ibid.
The assembly adopts the measure ibid.
Louis XVI. is sent to the Temple as a prisoner ibid.
Conduct of the armies and their generals respecting these proceedings ibid.
La Fayette still desirous of saving the monarchy and constitution 201
He arrests the three commissaries sent from the assembly ibid.
Critical situation of La Fayette at this period ibid.
He abandons the army with some officers of his staff ibid.
Determines to proceed to America ibid.
Falls into the hands of the Austrians, and sent to the prison of Olmutz ibid.
His harsh treatment during four years captivity ibid.
Sketch of his estimable character 202
Conduct of the dominant party in Paris ibid.
Appointment of an extraordinary criminal tribunal ibid.
Its progress too slow for the wishes of the commune ibid.
Danton takes the lead in the revolutionary party ibid.
Character of Danton—compared with Mirabeau 203
Advance of the Prussians into France—Verdun bombarded ibid.
Speech of Danton on this occasion ibid.
His proposition to frighten the Royalists 204
Domiciliary visits instituted ibid.
Intelligence arrives of the surrender of Verdun to the Prussians ibid.
Massacres of the 2nd and 3d of September ibid.
Horrible account of their proceedings ibid.
The executive council at a loss for generals ibid.
Dumouriez appointed to the army of the Moselle 205
He arrives at Grandpré and establishes a camp 205
Makes arrangements for receiving the Prussians ibid.
The duke of Brunswick passes the Meuse ibid.
Error of Dumouriez, he removes to Sainte-Menehould ibid.
He is re-inforced by Kellerman and Bouronville ibid.
The Prussians attack Kellerman at Valmy ibid.
The Prussians are successfully repulsed 206
They become disheartened, are attacked with disease, and forced to retreat ibid.
The duke of Brunswick negotiates with the convention ibid.
Successful issue of the rampart of 1792 to the French ibid.

LETTER XXII.

Progress of the French Revolution—Formation of the National Convention, September 1792—Contest between the Girondists and Mountainists—Robespierre—Trial of Louis XVI.—his condemnation and death, December 1792—January 1793.

Proceedings of the National Convention 206
France divided into two parties, the Girondists and the Mountainists 207
Struggle between these parties for the ascendancy ibid.
The principles of the Girondists described ibid.
The Mountainists desire a republic 208
Their respective places in the assembly ibid.
Girondists the most numerous body in it ibid.
Robespierre appears in the ranks of the Mountainists ibid.
—his numerous changes and present principles 209
—some account of his talents and character ibid.
—accused by the Girondists ibid.
The Girondists propose a law against the factions 210
The proposal violently opposed by the Mountainists ibid.
Marat, Danton, and Robespierre, attacked by the Girondists ibid.
Tumultuous proceedings in the convention ibid.
Attack on Marat—his principles described ibid.
Louvet accuses Robespierre, and denounces his proceedings 211
Robespierre asks a delay of eight days to prepare his defence 212
He defends himself and becomes head of the Mountainists ibid.
The latter procures a decree of the unity and indivisibility of the Republic 213
Ascendancy of the Mountainists over their opponents ibid.
CONTENTS.

The Jacobin club demands vengeance on Louis Capet 213
Unfortunate situation of that monarch ib.
Accusations against him ibid.
Secret papers discovered at the Tuileries 214
This discovery operates unfavourably to the king ibid.
Doubts entertained whether the deposed king could be tried ibid.
Discussions on the subject in the convention ibid.
Speech of St. Just, on this occasion 215
The Mountainists are for punishing him without trial ibid.
Robespierre supports the opinion of St. Just ibid.
He demands the condemnation of Louis 216
The Girondists succeed in procuring a trial ibid.
Robert Lindet makes his report, in the name of the commission of twenty-one ibid.
Conduct of the unhappy monarch at this trying crisis ibid.
Santerre ordered to conduct him to the bar of the convention ibid.
His appearance on entering the hall described ibid.
His defence of himself, and denial of the charges ibid.
He demands the aid of counsel, and returns to the Temple 217
Malesherbes volunteers his service as counsel ibid.
Speech of Desaze in behalf of the king ib.
The Girondists dread the charge of royatism and wavering in their conduct ibid.
They propose to refer the decision to the people at large 218
The convention finds Louis guilty ibid.
Sentence of death pronounced by a majority of twenty-six ibid.
Pathetic appeal of his counsel Malesherbes ibid.
His affecting interview with Louis XVI. ib.
The king's last request to him 219
Last interview of the unfortunate family ib.
He prepares himself for death ibid.
A. D. 1783. Particulars of his execution, 31st of January ibid.
Reflections on his character and unhappy lot ibid.

LETTER XX.

Restrospect of the affairs of Great Britain, from the termination of the American War to the commencement of the French Revolution. A. D. 1783—1793.

A. D. 1782. Formation of the Whig ministry in England 220
Death of the marquis of Rockingham ib.
Mr. Burke's eulogy on that nobleman ib.

Page
xix.

Contest betwixt the friends of Mr. Fox and lord Shelburne 220
The king raises lord Shelburne to the premiership 221
Resignation of Mr. Fox and his friends ib.
Lord Shelburne's treaty of peace not approved ibid.
He retires from office with Mr. Pitt ib.
Formation of the 'coalition ministry' ib.
Discussion of the affairs of the East India Company ibid.
Mr. Fox's East India bills brought into parliament ibid.
Mr. Pitt opposes them violently but unsuccessfully 222
Mr. Fox and his friends defend the bills ib.
Lord Temple prejudices the king against them ibid.
The king dismisses his servants ibid.
Mr. Pitt made first lord of the Treasury ib.
Parliament dissolved, 24th of March 1784 ibid.
New elections favourable to Mr. Pitt ib.
His measures of Finance ibid.
Brings in a new bill for India 225
His bill compared with Mr. Fox's ib.
Death of Samuel Johnson, L. L. D. December, 1784 ibid.
Estimate of his character and talents 224
Parliamentary discussions on the debts of the Nabob of Arrot 225
Speech of Mr. Burke on this topic ibid.
A. D. 1785. Mr. Burke is called upon to make good his charge against Warren Hastings Esq. 226
A. D. 1786. Mr. Burke accuses him of high crimes as governor-general of India ibid.
Conduct of Mr. Pitt and Mr. Dundas in this affair ibid.
Mr. Burke moves nine articles of impeachment 227
Mr. Hastings tenders his defence against them ibid.
Mr. Fox brings forward the Benares charge ibid.
Mr. Pitt admits its force and votes an impeachment on it ibid.
After a trial protracted to eight years, Mr. Hastings is acquitted ibid.
Mr. Burke's dying testimony against this acquittal 228
Remarks on the issue of this singular trial ibid.
A. D. 1788. Illness of George III. ibid.
Proceedings in parliament consequent thereon ibid.
A regency contemplated ibid.
Discussions on the right of the prince of Wales to the regency 230
Resolutions proposed by Mr. Pitt, and sanctioned by parliament ibid.
A. D. 1789. Death of Mr. Cornwall, the Speaker ibid.
Business of the regency resumed ibid.
CONTENTS.

Page
Unfounded charges against the latter party 238
Dumouriez makes the conquest of Belgium 238 visits Paris and returns to the army ibid.
Particulars of the campaign of Belgium ibid.
Hostilities between Dumouriez and the Jacobins ibid.
The latter send deputies into Belgium to propagate the revolution ibid.
Dumouriez discontented and resolves to change the system of government ibid.
All the powers of Europe confederate against France ibid.
The Republic is menaced on all sides 240
Estimate of power leagued against it ibid.
The convention orders a levy of three hundred thousand men ibid.
A new tribunal appointed in Paris ibid.
Position of the hostile armies at the opening of the campaign ibid.
Project of Dumouriez, impracticable and impolitic ibid.
Dumouriez advances into Holland, but is recalled by the executive 241
Defeat of the French army under Miranda ibid.
The Jacobins become outrageous, and denounce the Girondists ibid.
Form the resolution of murdering them on the 10th of March ibid.
The attempt anticipated and frustrated ibid.
Vergniaud denounces their committee of insurrection ibid.
He proposes an examination of the registers of the clubs, &c. ibid.
Insurrection of La Vendée ibid.
The country described 242
Its disaffection to the revolution, and disturbed state ibid.
The levy-en-masse becomes the signal of revolt ibid.
The Vendéans become masters of several towns ibid.
Their measures of organization, &c. ibid.
The convention adopt measures for countering the insurrection ibid.
The priests and nobles outlawed, and their properties confiscated ibid.
Dumouriez’s contest with the Jacobins continues 243
He confers with the Austrians about marching upon Paris ibid.
The Jacobin club sends a deputation to his army ibid.
Dumouriez’s singular reception of the three members ibid.
The convention summons him to its bar ibid.
He refuses compliance, and they send to arrest him 244
He seizes the commissaries and delivers them up to the Austrians ibid.

LETTER XXIV.

State of affairs in France political and military—General confederacy against France—Dumouriez’s successes in Belgium and Holland—Reverses of the army—Struggles of the Mountainists and Girondists—Conspiracy of March 1oth, 1793—Insurrection in La Vendée—Deportation of Dumouriez—Fall of the Girondists—Triumph of the Mountainists—Death of the queen. &c.

A. D. 1793. Effects of the death of Louis XVI on the parties in France 258
Victory of the Mountainists over the Girondists ibid.
CONTENTS.

The Convention declares him a traitor and sets a price on his head 244
He quits the army and passes into the Austrian camp ibid.
The committee of Public Safety now appointed ibid.
The duke of Orleans and all the Bourbons banished ibid.
Robespierre and Marat attack the Giron-dists by name ibid.
The latter attack Marat and send him to the revolutionary tribunal ibid.
He is acquitted and carried in triumph to the assembly ibid.
Gaudet makes a proposition which con-
founds the Mountainists 245
Barrere gets rid of it by proposing a commission of twelve ibid.
This commission discovers a new conspiracy ibid.
Hebert is arrested and the clubs establish their meetings permanently ibid.
They demand the suppression of the com-
misson of twelve ibid.
The president's speech in reply 246
The ball the scene of universal confusion ib.
The motion for the suppression of the twelve is carried ibid.
An attempt is made to renew their com-
misson, and succeeds ibid.
Terrible proceedings of the Jacobins, who prepare for extremities ibid.
Violent debates on this subject in the convention 217
The commission of twelve again suppressed and the mob disperses ibid.
The conspirators resolve on renewing the attack 248
Twenty thousand men surround the convention ibid.
Intrepid conduct of Lajuniax 249
The insurgents disappointed, leave the hall
and cry "to arms" ibid.
Twenty-four of the Girondist party are demanded to be given up ibid.
The convention finds all opposition unavailing 250
The leaders of the Girondists proscribed and put under arrest ibid.
The fall of the party, and an end put to the freedom of debate ibid.
Dishonour of the Girondist leaders ib.
Charlotte Corday assassinates Marat 251
Insurrection at Lyons, Marseilles, and Bourdeaux ibid.
The Lyonnaises place their city in a state of defence ibid.
Marseilles raises an army of ten thousand men to march against Paris 252
Toulon, Nimes, Montauban, &c. rise against the Jacobins ibid.
Various other towns follow their example
ibid.
Progress of royalism in La Vendée ibid.
Every thing conspires to overthrow the convention 252
Wretched state of the Republic at this time ibid.
Republican constitution proposed to the primary assemblies 234
Remarks on this new constitution * ibid.
The Mountain becomes acquainted with the extent of its danger ibid.
Extravagant request now presented to the assembly ibid.
Danton's motion founded on it ibid.
Barrere's proposition put and decreed 254
Astonishing physical force now called into exercise ibid.
Vigorous efforts to subdue the insurgents ib.
An English fleet sent to Toulon and takes possession of the town ibid.
Commissioners of the Mountain sent into the revolted capitals 255
Lyons besieged by general Kellerman and taken ibid.
Toulon also falls before the Republicans ib.
The convention are every where victorious
ibid.
Horrible state of matters in La Vendée ib.
The allied armies are repulsed at all points 256
Sanguinary proceedings of the committee of Public Safety ibid.
They inflict signal vengeance at Lyons.
Toulon and other places ibid.
Death of the queen, and of the Girondist, deputies ibid.
Intrepid behaviour of these men ibid.
Madame Roland is condemned and suffers—her husband kills himself—Condorcet is outlawed and has recourse to poison 257
Names of a few who escape by concealment ibid.

LETTER XXV.

Dreadful state of France after the fall of the Girondists — Reign of Terror —
Change of the calendar—Impious proceedings of the Convention—Abolition of Public worship—Projects of Robespierre—the monster opposed, defeated and put to death, A. D. 1794.

Formation of the revolutionary government 257
Committee of Public Safety by whom managed ibid.
Its first measures in relation to the Ca-
lenarium 258
Substitute the Republican for the Christian calendar ibid.
———Decade in place of the week ib.
The new era commences 22nd of September ibid.
Names of their months &c. ibid.
CONTENTS.

Danton and Robespierre divide the power between them 258
Some account of Danton ibid.
Robespierre’s jealousy of him and crafty conduct ibid.
Religion a tool in the hand of the Jacobin leaders 250
Gobet, bishop of Paris—the farcical part he performs ibid.
—declares his religion to be an imposture ibid.
—denies the existence of the Deity and lays aside his episcopal decorations ibid.
Several priests follow his example ibid.
The plate of the church seized on and desecrated ibid.
The worship of God commuted for that of the goddess of Reason ibid.
Structures on this impious and ridiculous mummary ibid.
The sanctity of marriage annulled 260
This folly and madness defeated its own end ibid.
Arrest of Anacharsis Cloots and others ibid.
Charges preferred against them ibid.
Nineteen of them convicted and executed 261
Robespierre attacks the club of the Cordeliers ibid.
Danton, the Mahomet of Jacobinism is arrested ibid.
Comparison of Marat, Danton, and Robespierre ibid.
Danton and his associates are tried, condemned, and executed 262
Robespierre alarmed at the issue of their trial ibid.
Danton accuses him of being accessory to his death 263
Cecile Regnault, a female, is guillotined on suspicion of having designs on his life ibid.
Sixty-eight others suffer at the same time on suspicion ibid.
The terrorists divided among themselves ibid.
The people get wearied of executions, and are less passive ibid.
The guillotine is removed to a more obscure place ibid.
The scenes of pillage and bloodshed begin to disgust 264
Robespierre aware of his increasing unpopularity ibid.
His political finesse and studied austerity of manners ibid.
His agent, Payan, checks the licentiousness of the times ibid.
Robespierre censures profane swearing ibid.
And affect to be a reformer of morals ibid.
Couthon’s decree for extending the powers of the revolutionary tribunal 265
Remarks on the terrible consequences of this decree ibid.
Effect of its announcement in the convention 265
The decree is opposed but ultimately passed into a law ibid.
Mortal war between Robespierre and the leaders of the convention ibid.
A schism takes place among his own friends ibid.
Robespierre seeks for allies among the Girondists, in vain ibid.
His popularity in the Jacobin club and complaint of being persecuted 266
He recommends a purification of the Society ibid.
Tries his strength with the judges of the revolutionary tribunal ibid.
He delays his grand attack for six weeks ibid.
Vandier’s dexterous attack on a sect patronised by Robespierre ibid.
Robespierre feels his insecure standing and hesitates what to do ibid.
A singular disclosure made by an anonymous letter ibid.
Robespierre determines to try his fate with the convention 267
His first speech is an eulogium on his own virtues ibid.
A motion is made to print the discourse ibid.
A stormy debate ensues and he sees his approaching fall ibid.
His recourse to the Jacobin club ibid.
Anecdote of the celebrated David, the painter ibid.
Payan proposes to march against the two committees 268
The Jacobins expel several leading members from their club ibid.
They prepare a report on the speech of Robespierre ibid.
The parties fairly at issue, and the fall of the dictator foreseen ibid.
Extraordinary occurrences of 9th Thermidor, (27th of July) ibid.
Robespierre appears in the convention, and finds his adversaries in array ibid.
Description of the two parties ibid.
St. Just makes the report on the speech of Robespierre 269
St. Just is forced from the tribune ibid.
Speech of Billau Varennes on the proceedings in the Jacobin club ibid.
He denounces Robespierre as a second Cataline ibid.
The convention applauds, and Robespierre attempts to reply ibid.
Taille moves the denunciation of Robespierre, and arrest of Henriot &c. ibid.
A dreadful scene of confusion, clamour, and contention ensues ibid.
Picture of the defeated tyrant at this instant ibid.
His complete and final overthrow 270
Arrest of the two Robespierre’s, Couthon, and St. Just, &c. ibid.
The officers of justice hesitate to lay hands on the tyrant

Sitting of the convention voted permanent

Henriot marches an armed force against the convention

He is arrested by the gens d'armes

The jailors refuse to receive the arrested deputies

Alarmed state of Paris at this juncture

Payan musters a sufficient force to release Robespierre

The tyrant is rendered incapable of exertion

Proceedings of the convention

Impending catastrophe ultimately surmounted

The public voice declares against the Terrorists

The leaders reproach each other for want of exertion

Death of Henriot, Le Bas, the two Robespierres, St. Just, and others

Description of the horrible state of the elder Robespierre

Execrations poured on the latter

Sketch of his character

Epitaph for his tombstone

Lord Mulgrave commands the troops there

Particulars of its attack and defence

The slow progress of the siege discourage the French

Buonaparte is sent to assist at it

His objection to the plan pursued by general Cartaux

His advice at a council of war

His advice is taken and his plans adopted

General Doppet supercedes Cartaux

Anecdote of Doppet, who is succeeded by Dugommier

Anecdote of Buonaparte

Junot's first appearance in the arena

And general Duroc's

Buonaparte is thwarted by the commissioners from Paris

He hastens his operations

A sally is made from the garrison

The British troops are thrown into confusion

General O'Hara is wounded and taken prisoner

Batteries opened on Fort Mulgrave

The fort ultimately taken by the French

Buonaparte's account of the commissioners

The allied troops resolve to evacuate Toulon

The British fleet receives the inhabitants

The arsenal, naval stores, and ships in harbour are destroyed

Activity of sir Sidney Smith on the occasion

Tremendous scene which now presented itself

Dreadful explosion of two ships laden with gunpowder

The British fleet leaves Toulon

The star of Napoleon now first ascends above the horizon

Triumph of the Jacobins on the capture of Toulon

Buonaparte's conduct on this occasion

He is recommended for promotion

Is made chief of battalion, and joins the army of Italy

His first achievements on joining the army

Recommends to the convention a plan which gives alarm

His reflections on the fall of Robespierre

His difficult situation at this time

Returns to Paris in May 1793

His application for employment opposed

Applies to Barras and Piron—his proposal to them

State of the national convention at this period

Defects in the different constitutions

Prevailing influence of the Thermidoriens

Speculations for resuming the monarchy
CONTENTS.

Commissioners appointed for drawing up a new constitution 283
Appointment of five directors ib.
The executive divided into two councils— that of Elders, and of the Five Hundred ibid.
Their respective qualifications ibid.
A. D. 1793. Remarks on the constitution of the year 3 ibid.
Its advanvantages annulled by the Thermidors ibid.
The plans of the latter meet with strong opposition ibid.
The Sections of Paris oppose the convention * 285
The parties prepare for hostilities ibid.
General Janian succeeded by Menou in the command of the national force ib.
Menou is suspected and placed under arrest ibid.
Buonaparte's appointment to the command of the troops 286
His skilful arrangements for meeting the storm ibid.
Affray of the sections 5th of October, 1795 ibid.
Victory decides in favour of the convention ibid.
Prudent use of this success by the victors 287
Barras calls attention to the skill of Buonaparte ibid.
Proceedings of the convention ibid.
A new directory chosen—their names ibid.
Buonaparte raised to the office of commander-in-chief ibid.
His first acquaintance with madame Beauchenois ibid.
Eugene solicits from him his father's sword ibid.
Description of Eugene's mother ibid.
Her intimacy with Barras and Tallien ibid.
Buonaparte solicits her in marriage ibid.
Which took place on the 9th of March, 1796 ibid.
Reflections on this occurrence ibid.

LETTER XXVII.

Affairs of Great Britain from the commencement of the war with France—the sends an army into Flanders—subsidizes Prussia—has a dispute with America—Bad state of her domestic politics—Lord Howe defeats the French fleet—ills success of the duke of York—marching of his retreating army—Austria subsidizes—English expedition to the coast of France—Tumultuous proceedings in the Metropolis—Lord Malmesbury sent to Paris to negotiate a peace. A. D. 1793—1796.
Introductory remarks 289
Mistaken policy of England in going to war ibid.
Protests on the part of France ibid.
A. D. 1793. Meeting of the British parliament 289
Correspondence of Monsieur Chauvelin and lord Grenville 290
Intelligence received of the death of Louis XVI. ibid.
England resolves to send an army into the Netherlands ibid.
The troops under the command of the duke of York land at Helvoetsluys ibid.
The French defeated at Famars ibid.
The duke of York attacks Dunkirk ibid.
Drives the French into the town ibid.
Commences the siege of Dunkirk ibid.
Non arrival of the naval force from England ibid.
The enemy's gun-boats enfilade the British encampment ibid.
The British obliged to abandon the siege ibid.
Disastrous effects of their retreat ibid.
The Austrian general Wurmer forces the lines of Weissenbourg &c 292
The French re-inforced compel Wurmer and the duke of Brunswick to retreat ibid.
The Austrians compelled to recross the Rhine ibid.
The campaign closes successfully to the French ibid.
Meeting of the British parliament, January, 1794 ibid.
The opposition recommend negotiations for peace ibid.
Grounds of discussion pro and con ibid.
Speech of the marquis of Lansdowne, 17th of February 293
Landing of Hessian troops in the Isle of Wight ibid.
Great Britain obliged to subsidize the continental powers ibid.
Debate on the Prussian alliance 294
Contest with the American States ibid.
Arrival of Mr. Jay, the American minister ibid.
The dispute compromised ibid.
Progress of democracy in England and Scotland 295
Muir and Palmer sentenced to transportation ibid.
Societies formed in England ibid.
Trials of Hardy, Tooke, and Thelwall ibid.
Naval preparations at Brest 296
Lord Howe engages and defeats the French fleet, 1st of June, 1794 ibid.
Particulars of his victory 297
Operations of the French armies ibid.
The duke of York defeats Pichegru, with great slaughter ibid.
The emperor of Austria takes the command of his army ibid.
Joins the duke of York in the Nether- lands ibid.
Their armies defeated ibid.
Skilful retreat of the duke of York 298
CONTENTS.

| The duke joined by lord Moira, at Antwerp, with ten thousand troops | 298 |
| Detailed account of their campaign | ibid. |
| The Belgians every where are opposed to the Austrians | ibid. |
| Campaign on the frontiers of Germany | ibid. |
| Retreat of the Austrians and Prussians | ibid. |
| The emperor of Germany gives up the command of his army and returns to Vienna | ibid. |
| The duke of Brunswick’s letter to the king of Prussia | ibid. |
| Reflections on that letter | 299 |
| The emperor of Germany grows sick of the war | ibid. |
| Liberal subsidy from England to Prussia | ibid. |
| The French force the Prussian lines at Edicoffen | ibid. |
| Belgium is given up to the French, and Brabant threatened | 300 |
| The duke of York fortifies the barrier towns | ibid. |
| His contest with Pichegru, 14th of September | ibid. |
| The duke retreats under the walls of Nimyguen | ibid. |
| Is compelled to recross the Waal | ibid. |
| The frost enables the French armies to cross the rivers | ibid. |
| They attack the allies and are every where successful | ibid. |
| Tremendous issue of the campaign of 1794 | ibid. |
| Melancholy state of the British army | 301 |
| Their retreat under lord Cathcart and general Abercrombie | ibid. |
| Pichegru’s career through the Dutch provinces | ibid. |
| Flight of the stadtholder and his reception in England | ibid. |
| Holland and Belgium become an appendage to France | ibid. |
| The king of Prussia retires from the coalition | ibid. |
| The landgrave of Hesse copies his example | ibid. |
| These secessions announced to the British parliament | ibid. |
| A. D. 1795. Expedition to the coast of France | ibid. |
| Landing at Quiberon Bay | 303 |
| Miserable result of this expedition | ibid. |
| A. D. 1796. Domestic occurrences of Britain | ibid. |
| Meeting of parliament 29th of October | 304 |
| Outrages to the king in his way to parliament | ibid. |
| Proceedings in the commons consequent thereon | ibid. |
| The king and his ministers receive a lesson from the mob | ibid. |
| France and Holland attack the commerce of England | ibid. |
| England attempts to regain Prussia to the coalition | 304 |
| Lord Malmesbury sent to Paris to negotiate a peace | ibid. |
| Unsuccessful issue of the negotiation | 305 |

LETTER XXVIII.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Italian campaign—Buonaparte marches towards Italy—Battle of Monte Notte—defeat of the Austrian general Provera—Retreat of the allied armies—Battle of Millesimo—The French army enters Piedmont—The king of Sardinia requests an armistice—The French enter the Milanese country—Death of general La Harpe—Battle of Lodi—Buonaparte enters Milan—The Pope obliged to purchase an armistice—And the duke of Modena—the French plunder the country of its finest pieces of statuary and painting—Reflections on this act of spoliation. A. D. 1796.</th>
<th>xxv.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Preliminary remarks</td>
<td>305</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The French armies cross the Alps</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buonaparte is accompanied by the deputy Salicetti</td>
<td>306</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buonaparte’s address to the army of Italy</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His novel plan of invading the country</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Beaujolais commands the Austrian army</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He hastens to protect Genoa against Buonaparte</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A. D. 1796. Operations of the Austrian army April the 10th.</td>
<td>307</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Battle of Monte Notte—first victory of Buonaparte</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Beaujolais’s situation in consequence</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Advance of the French army</td>
<td>308</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Attack on the Austrian general Provera at Millesimo</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon attacks general Colli at Cassaria</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Massena attacks the heights of Biastra</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Retreat of the Austrians who retire upon D’Aqui</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Austrians drive the French from Dego</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Battle of Millesimo renewed</td>
<td>309</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Disastrous issue to the Austrians</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buonaparte defeats the Sardinian general Colli</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He fixes his head quarters at Ceva</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His reflections on contemplating the fertile fields of Piedmont</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Colli attacked at Mondovi</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Murat compels the Sardinians to retreat ibid.</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buonaparte takes possession of Cherasco ibid.</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Recapitulation of Buonaparte’s successes during the last month</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The king of Sardinia’s situation described</td>
<td>310</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He sues for an armistice, which is agreed to at Claverac</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Negotiations for peace with the French directory
Death of Victor Amadeus, who is succeeded by his son ibid.
Close of the Piedmontese campaign and estimates of Napoleon's talents ibid.
He now gazes on Italy with an eagle's eye ibid.
He determines to advance against Venice, Tuscany &c. ibid.
Efforts of Austria to defend her Italian dominions ibid.
The directory are jealous of Buonaparte and withhold re-inforcements ibid.
His address to the army respecting the projected attack on Milan ibid.
He fixes his head quarters at Tortona ibid.
Prepares for the passage of the Po ibid.
Beauhieu determines to oppose their passage ibid.
Buonaparte's manœuvre to deceive Beauhieu ibid.
He deceives the latter by a feigned effort at Valenza ibid.
During which he makes a forced march to Placenza ibid.
The French army crosses the left bank of the Po, May the 7th ibid.
Tardy movements of Beauhieu, who now marches to Placenza ibid.
Buonaparte moves his army forwards towards Casal ibid.
The Austrians throw themselves into Fombio and prepare to fortify it ibid.
The French carry the place at the bayonets point ibid.
Death of the French general L'a Harpe ibid.
Napoleon's remark to the directory on crossing the Po ibid.
He crosses the Adda and prepares for the battle of Lodi ibid.
Description of the town—important to the French to take it ibid.
Celerity of Buonaparte's movements ibid.
He proceeds towards Lodi May the 10th ibid.
Has a skirmish with the Austrian rear-guard ibid.
Prepares for passing the bridge of Lodi ibid.
Particulars of this memorable event ibid.
Reflections on this important measure 315
Buonaparte's object in this daring exploit ibid.
Disastrous issue to the Austrians 316
Buonaparte's interview with the old Hungarian officer ibid.
Conduct of the people of Milan at this time ibid.
The archduke Ferdinand quits the city with tears ibid.
The Milanese prepare for the reception of the French ibid.
Buonaparte's triumphant entry into Milan May the 14th ibid.
Planting the cause of liberty &c. ibid.
Contributions levied on the city ibid.
Situation of Naples and Lombardy prior to the French invasion ibid.
Tuscany and Venice in league with the French republic ibid.
Yet Buonaparte determines to treat them as enemies ibid.
His treatment to the duke of Parma ibid.
And of Modena ibid.
The latter purchases the privilege of neutrality ibid.
Spoliations committed by the French on their works of taste ibid.
Reflections on the conduct of Buonaparte in this instance ibid.
A museum founded at Paris for the reception of these spoliations ibid.
The duke of Modena and the Picture of St Jerome ibid.
Napoleon's dispatch to the directory ibid.
Speech of the secretary general of the Lyceum ibid.
The conduct of the French condemned in these acts of spoliations ibid.

LETTER XXIX.

Introductory remarks ibid.
State of the belligerent powers ibid.
Buonaparte receives dispatches from the directory ibid.
They propose to divide the command of the army of Italy ibid.
He disapproves of the plan and offers to resign ibid.
The directory gives way and he retains the sole command ibid.
He fixes his head quarters at Lodi, May the 24th ibid.
Insurrection at Pavia, and a French corps made prisoners ibid.
Causes which induced this insurrection ibid.
Buonaparte marches his troops to put down this insurrection ibid.
Inflicts a severe chastisement on the leading insurgents ibid.
Proclamation of the French general on this occasion ibid.
Execution of the leaders—Lago is taken by a storm and pillaged ibid.
Napoleon's conduct compared with the duke of Brunswick's manifesto ibid.
He advances to Brescia and again deceives Beauprie ibid.
CONTENTS.

He occupies the village of Legnano 333
He is pursued by Buonaparte, who meditates his destruction ibid.
Wurmser defeats the French at Coren ibid.
Buonaparte arrives and is nearly taken prisoner ibid.
Buonaparte gives orders for a pursuit, but is unsuccessful ibid.
Is repeatedly successful, and forms a communication with Mantua ibid.
Buonaparte forces his way into the islet of the Seraglio ibid.
A severe and sanguinary action ensues 339
Wurmser throws himself into Mantua ibid.
Wretched state of the place at this time ibid.
Speech of the minister of war to the directory at this period ibid.
Buonaparte succeeds in re-uniting Corsica to France ibid.
His critical situation at this time ibid.
Position of the hostile powers ibid.
Austria assembles two armies on the Italian frontier 340
The command of both placed under marshal Alvinzi ibid.
Disposition of the armies on either side ibid.
Buonaparte issues his orders for attack, October 1706 ibid.
He determines to give battle to Alvinzi 341
His first encounter of doubtful issue ibid.
He retreats from Bassano to Vicenza and Verona ibid.
The Austrians negligent in improving their advantages ibid.
Buonaparte displeased with his own troops and chides them ibid.
Alvinzi occupies the heights of Calderio ibid.
Preparations for the battle of Arcola 342
Its situation described and Buonaparte's reasons for attacking it ibid.
He commences his march from Verona at nightfall ibid.
Movement of the armies towards Arcola ibid.
Augereau with his chosen grenadiers fails to carry the bridge ibid.
Napoleon seizes a stand of colours and rushes on the bridge 343
His perilous plight at this moment ibid.
The bridge is finally carried and the Austrians driven from Arcola ibid.
Alvinzi crosses the Alpini and disappoints Buonaparte ibid.
The latter evacuates Arcola and retreats to Ronco ibid.
Consequences of the first battle of Arcola ibid.

Manoeuvrings between Napoleon and Alvinzi ibid.
The second battle of Arcola, November the 16th 344
Alvins maintains his ground, and both parties draw off ibid.
The battle renewed on the 17th of November ibid.

Detail of military operations in this engagement 344
After severe fighting Alvinzi retreats to Montebello ibid.
Loss of the Austrians in the three battles of Arcola ibid.
Buonaparte's account of his own loss ibid.
Tardy conduct of Davidovich, much to be censured 345
Wurmser makes a sally from Mantua, 23d of November ibid.
Termination of the fourth campaign—reflections ibid.

c. LETTER XXX.

Italian campaign of 1797—Contest at La Favorita—Fall of Mantua—Popularity of Buonaparte—He proposes terms to the Pope—Invades the Papal territories—Situation of the different Italian States—Rome—Naples—Tuscany—Venice—Napoleon compels the archduke Charles to retreat—Conduct of Venice—Armistice between France and Austria—Treaty of Lachen signed—Buonaparte declares war against Venice &c. A.D. 1797.

Results of the battle of Rivoli 345
Buonaparte proceeds to the siege of Mantua January the 14th, 1797 ibid.
Orders Joubert to attack the Austrians at Corona 346
The latter are defeated and take refuge in the Tyrol ibid.
Napoleon arrives at Roverbella, 15th of January ibid.
Is surprised at finding the Austrian general Provera at Mantua ibid.
Provera and Wurmser communicate across the lake and concert measures of relief ibid.
The fortress of St. Antonia and La Favorita carried ibid.
Buonaparte attacks the Austrians and is everywhere successful ibid.
Wurmser capitulates for the surrender of Mantua ibid.
Buonaparte, in disguise writes down the conditions 347
Their favourable tenor honourable to Buonaparte ibid.
Another honourable trait in his conduct ibid.
Conduct of the French on getting possession of Mantua ibid.
Elevated situation of Napoleon at this time ibid.
His popularity with the army 348
His description of the French soldier ibid.
His prudent conduct as a general commended ibid.
His uncorruptedness attested ibid.
Gradual change in his manners towards his officers ibid.
His conduct politic towards the Italians 349
His letter to Oriiani ibid.
LETTER XXXI.

Embarrassing condition of Great Britain 365
Effects of lord Malmesbury's return ibid.
The king's message to parliament ibid.
Cash payments suspended at the Bank of England ibid.
Parliamentary discussions founded on it ibid.
Mr. Pitt's bill for protecting the Bank 367
Defeated by Sir John Jervis, who is created Earl St. Vincent ibid.
Nelson created a baronet for his valor ibid.
A French force lands in Pembroke-shire 368
Who surrender prisoners of war ibid.
Trinidad surrenders to the British ibid.
Mutiny among the British seamen ibid.
Delegates appointed, and petitions drawn up by them ibid.
The board of Admiralty transferred to Portsmouth 369
The seamen obtain a redress of their grievances ibid.
A second mutiny breaks out, which is again quashed ibid.
A third mutiny at the Nore ibid.
The Admiralty refuse compliance with their demands ibid.
The lords of the Admiralty repair to Sheerness ibid.
The ringleaders executed and subordination restored ibid.
Lord Duncan defeats the Dutch fleet, October 11th, 1797 ibid.
A day of thanksgiving appointed, and the two houses of parliament go in procession to St. Paul's ibid.
Disaffected state of Ireland in 1797 ibid.
Meeting of the British parliament, November 1797 ibid.
State of Ireland particularly considered in it ibid.
Insurrection of Wexford 371

Recall of lord Camden, who is succeeded by lord Cornwallis 371
French troops landed at Killala ibid.
They surrender to lord Cornwallis ibid.
Sir John Borlase Warren intercepts a French squadron on the coast of Ireland ibid.
The rebellion quashed, with the loss of thirty thousand lives ibid.
The French directory project the invasion of England 372
Specimen of French gasconade ibid.
Buonaparte surveys the coast, but hesitates ibid.
Expédition to Egypt projected by the directory ibid.
Sailing of the armament from Toulon ibid.
Arrival of the expedition at Malta ibid.
Lord Nelson pursues the expedition to Egypt, where he arrives before it ibid.
Nelson not finding them, returns to the Levant ibid.
The French fleet arrives at Alexandria, 29th of June ibid.
Disembarkation of the troops, and their march to Alexandria ibid.
Buonaparte's proclamation to the Mussulmen ibid.
Marches his army against the Mamelukes ibid.
The army of Italy disappointed in viewing the country ibid.
Enraged conduct of the officers ibid.
The French annoyed by the Mamelukes and Arabs ibid.
Description of the Mameluke horsemen ibid.
Arrival of the French in the neighbourhood of the Pyramids ibid.
The Mamelukes present themselves in full force ibid.
Buonaparte's address to his troops ibid.
The battle of the Pyramids described ibid.
Fury of the Mameluke attack ibid.
The French defeat them and drive them into the Nile ibid.
Buonaparte's reflections on the occasion ibid.
Surrender of Grand Cairo to the French ibid.
Who thus possess themselves of the whole of lower Egypt ibid.
Arrival of lord Nelson in the bay of Aboukir 376
He finds the French fleet there and determines on an attack ibid.
Particulars of the engagement ibid.
Death of admiral Brueys and destruction of his fleet ibid.
Results of the victory of Aboukir ibid.
Buonaparte proceeds to the Isthmus of Suez ibid.
Determines on the occupation of Syria ibid.
Seizes the fort El-Arish ibid.
Buonaparte enters the Holy Land ibid.
He takes Gaza, and Jaffa putting three thousand Turks to the sword ibid.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CONTENTS.</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Buonaparte's cruel treatment of the prisoners at Jaffa</td>
<td>377</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He marches to Saint Jean d'Acre</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His letters to Djazzar Pacha, the governor</td>
<td>378</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Who applies for assistance to Sir Sidney Smith</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Intrepid conduct of this officer</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Capture of a French convoy from Damietta</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Preparations for defending Acre</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buonaparte commences the siege, 17th of March</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The French commence the assault, March 28th</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>They are repulsed by the Turks, who destroy their works</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The French army is surrounded by the Moslems</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kleber is sent to disperse the latter</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buonaparte forced to hasten to his assistance</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The French receive thirty pieces of cannon from Jaffa</td>
<td>379</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buonaparte's address to Murat</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His repeated and desperate assaults on Acre</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arrival of a re-inforcement of Turkish troops</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Djazzar allows the French to enter the place</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Desperate conduct of the Turks at this instant</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The French general Rambaud killed and Lamens wounded</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The last effort of the French, 21st of May, 1799</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The siege finally abandoned</td>
<td>380</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buonaparte's remarks on his failure</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Retreat of the French to Jaffa</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Report of his proposal to administer opium to the sick</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buonaparte returns to Cairo</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Where he continues two months deliberating</td>
<td>381</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A formidable force is mustered against the French</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Buonaparte's oracular address to Murat</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Mamelukes commence an attack on the French</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The latter repulse them with great slaughter</td>
<td>382</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon obtains a splendid victory and prepares to quit Egypt</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>State of affairs in France</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He commits the army to Kleber and Menou and embarks for Europe</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lands at Frejus, with his staff, October the 9th</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Union of England and Ireland, January 1799</td>
<td>383</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British expedition to the coast of Holland</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Dutch fleet surrenders to admiral Mitchell</td>
<td>383</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The duke of York returns to Holland 13th of September</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Takes possession of Alkmaar</td>
<td>384</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Suspension of hostilities agreed on</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The British agree to evacuate Holland</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Expedition under Sir James Pulteney attempts Ferrol but fails</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>General wish for peace</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Discussions between M. Otto and Lord Grenville</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Embargo laid on all foreign ships in the British ports</td>
<td>385</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Which is retorted by Denmark and Sweden</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prussia lays an embargo, and her troops seize Hanover</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Danish troops take possession of Hamburg</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The British fleet attack Copenhagen</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A dreadful battle ensues</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Death of the emperor Paul of Russia</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He is succeeded by Alexander</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mr. Pitt gives in his resignation</td>
<td>386</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>New arrangements in the cabinet</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reasons assigned by lord Grenville for resigning</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>British expedition to Egypt under Sir Ralph Abercrombie</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>It arrives at Alexandria, March the 1st 1801</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The British troops defeat the French in their first encounter</td>
<td>387</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Battle of Alexandria, 21st of March</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Victory decided for the English, who take the invincible standard</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sir Ralph Abercrombie receives a mortal wound and dies</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>General Hutchinson succeeds to the command</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He proceeds against Alexandria and Cairo</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The French agree to surrender the latter place</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Arrival of general Baird from India in the Red Sea</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The French surrender Alexandria, and agree to evacuate Egypt</td>
<td>389</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Admiral Sir James Saumarez engages a combined squadron on the coast of Spain</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nelson attacks the French flotilla at Boulogne</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Threatened invasion of England</td>
<td>390</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>France attempts to detach Portugal from England</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Spain marches an army into Portugal</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>England assists her ally</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Negotiations for peace continued and preliminaries signed</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reflections on the war</td>
<td>391</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
CONTENTS.

LETTER XXXII.

Continuation of the internal affairs of France, from the insurrection of the sections 1795 to the end of the directorial government in 1800—Jacobinical conspiracy frustrated—Elections of May 1797—Joyalist attempt at conspiracy and exile of many members of the councils—Return of Buonaparte to Paris, May 1798—Reflections on his Egyptian expedition—Conduct of the Directory and proceedings of the councils—Turbulent state of affairs—plans of Napoleon for quashing them—He obtains the office of consul and dissolves the legislative body, A. D. 1800.

The English, American, and French revolutions compared 391
Paramount influence of the French revolution 392
Advantages attending the appointment of a directory 392
State of the country at the time it commenced 392
Reflections on the defection of Pichegru 393
Carnot's plan of the campaign of 1796 393
The directory attacked by the democrats and royalists 393
Babœuf becomes leader of the democratic faction 393
The directory prevent the meetings at the Pantheon 394
The directory defeat a conspiracy against them 394
The democrats resolve on overturning the convention 394
Their plot is discovered and Babœuf arrested 394
Babœuf and Darthe tried and sentenced to death, but kill themselves 394
Insurrection against the directory frustrated 394
Contest between the sections and the directory 395
The directory call in the aid of the military 395
Destruction of the democratic party 395
The elections of 1797 favourable to the royalist party 395
Assembly of the councils, Pichegru president 395
Projected attack on the directory 395
An intermediate party arranged under Carnot 395
The army under Augereau interposes between the parties 396
Arrest of Pichegru and the royalist leaders 396
The councils are summoned—address from the directory 397
Banishment of the royalist leaders to Cayenne 397
Consequences of this measure 397

Return of Napoleon from Egypt, and honours shown him 397
Conduct of the rulers of France towards Switzerland 398
The Papal territories formed into a republic 398
Elections of May 1798 unfavourable to the directory 398
Character of the directory at this period 399
Second coalition of the continental powers 399
The armies of Russia and Austria muster in Germany 400
Commencement of hostilities in Italy and on the Rhine 400
Military conscription in France 400
Plan of the coalesced powers 400
The duke of York again lands an army in Holland 400
Elections of May 1799, favour the republican party 400
The directory and the councils at variance 400
The directory resign and are succeeded by others 400
Abbé Siéyès projects a new constitution 401
And relies on the army for enforcing it 401
Intriguing of parties at this time 401
The royalists once more lift up their heads 402
The allied armies receive a check in various quarters 402
Defeat of the British in Holland and return home of the army 402
Prevailing dissensions in the French government 402
The return of Buonaparte from Egypt brings matters to an issue 402
Interview between Siéyès and Buonaparte 403
Adoption of a plan for making the latter first consul 403
Preparations for carrying it into effect 404
The directory are panic-struck and resign 404
Buonaparte places himself at the head of the troops and marches them to the Tuileries 404
Decree of the council of ancients and Napoleon's proclamations 404
Language of the latter on seizing the dictatorship 404
Assembling of the council at St. Cloud, 9th of November 405
The army surrounds the two councils-chambers 405
The members renew the oath to the constitution of the year three 405
Buonaparte presents himself among them and addresses them 405
They call upon him to take the oath which he declines 406
He repairs to the council of Five Hundred 406
The scene of confusion occasioned by it 406
Conduct of Lucien Buonaparte on the occasion 406
CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Title</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon retires from the Hall, and appeals to his soldiers</td>
<td>407</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The latter pledge themselves to support him</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He gives orders to his officers to clear the hall of Five Hundred</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The members oppose the military, but are compelled to retire</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A military government established in France, November the 9th 1799</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

LETTER XXXIII.

State of France consequent on the appointment of Napoleon to the consulate—A provisional government nominated—The constitution of the Abbé Siéyès changed in the constitution of the year III—Formation of the government—Pacific professions of Napoleon—Campaign of Italy and celebrated battle of Marengo—Peace of the continent by the treaty of Luneville, and with England by the treaty of Amiens, A. D. 1799—1802.

Speculations on the result of the recent change in the French government |
Formation of the consular government |
Its constituent parts and appalling principles unravelled |
Leading ministers now appointed |
Napoleon offers peace to the king of England |
Substance of lord Grenville's reply to his letter |
Napoleon's address to the French nation |
His preparations for the campaign and plan for prosecuting it |
Secretly transports his army across the Alps |
He leaves Paris, May the 6th 1800, and arrives at Geneva on the 8th |
He joins the van of his army at Lausanne, May the 13th |
Report of Carnot, the minister of war |
Berthier is nominally constituted, commander-in-chief |
Force of the army of Italy at this period |
Their plan of crossing the Alps and difficulties surmounted |
Napoleon's own march described |
The French arrive at the convent of St. Bernard |
Descent of the troops beyond Mont St. Bernard |
Commencement of military operations between the French and Austrians |
The French have to attack the fortress of Bard |
Buonaparte evades the rock of Alberadó, and escapes the garrison of Bard |
Fort Bard afterwards reduced by the French troops |
The French army advance down the valley of Ivrea |
Plan of the Austrians for opposing the progress of the French |
Operations of the Austrian general Melas |
The English fleet co-operate with him at Genoa |
Skirmish between Melas and Massena at Genoa |
Details of the siege of Genoa |
General Melas enters Nice and prepares to pass the Var |
Melas receives information that Napoleon had crossed the Alps and was threatening Piedmont and the Milanese |
He determines to march against Buonaparte, and orders general Ott to raise the siege of Genoa |
Buonaparte deceives Melas and marches direct for Milan |
Skilful manoeuvring of the French army |
Napoleon enters Milan, June the 2nd, and re-organises the Cisalpine government |
He issues a proclamation to his troops |
Description of general Melas as an officer |
His critical situation at this period |
He moves his troops towards Alexandria |
Battle of Montebello |
Contest between generals Lannes and Ott—defeat of the Austrians |
Approaching battle of Marengo |
General Dessaix arrives from Egypt and joins Buonaparte |
The first consul draws his troops towards the plain of Marengo |
He is disappointed by the movements of Melas |
Napoleon orders Dessaix to march towards Rivolta |
Melas holds a council of war and resolves to fight Napoleon |
Dispositions for the battle of Marengo |
Comparative estimate of their forces |
Important issue at stake |
The Austrians cross the Bormida and proceed to the attack |
Particulars of the battle of Marengo |
Progress of this severely contested battle |
Melas, exhausted, retreats to the field |
The issue in favour of the Austrians |
Dessaix's observation to Napoleon who was retreating |
General Zach succeeds Melas in the Austrian command |
Death of general Dessaix, by a musket ball |
Buonaparte's address to his troops |
An imprudent step of the Austrians loses them the day |
The success of the French owing to the arrival of Dessaix |
Melas enters into a convention with Buonaparte, June 15th 1800 |
Return of Buonaparte to Milan, and his proceedings there
CONTENTS.

Buonaparte constitutes Massena commander-in-chief in Italy and returns to Paris 420
Review of his movements from May the 6th to July the 2nd
His reception at Paris 421

Peace between Austria and France ratified by the treaty of Lunéville ibid.
Treaties of peace now signed with Naples—Portugal—Russia—the Ottoman Porte—and finally with England ibid.

PART IV.

FROM THE TREATY OF AMIENS, IN 1802, TO THE DEATH OF ALFRED I. THE RUSSIAN EMPEROR, IN 1825.

LETTI R I.

Sketch of the politics of Europe, from the general pacification in 1802, to the renewal of hostilities, June 1803—Napoleon created consul for ten years—afterwards for life—Expedition to St. Domingo—Its total failure, and melancholy results—Reflections on that event—Renewal of war with France.

Aggrandizement of France resulting from the late war 422
Napoleon continues his encroachments on neutral states ibid.
Termination of the war in La Vendée 423
Attempt on the life of the first consul—the infernal machine ibid.
His own account of his policy on commencing his consulship 424
His plan for re-establishing the Catholic worship ibid.
Enter into a concordat with the Pope ib.
Its solemn inauguration in the church of Notre Dame ibid.
Cardinal Caspar's complimentary address 425
Proclamation and general rejoicings ibid.
General Delma's cutting remarks on Napoleon ibid.
The concordat presented to the legislative assembly ibid.
Portalis's speech on the occasion and its results ibid.
Creation of the Legion of honour ibid.
Remark of Berlioz counsellor of state ib.
Buonaparte vindicates the restoration of the baubles of monarchy 426
Progress of the government towards a confirmed despotism ibid.
Napoleon decree consul for life ibid.
Review of the destruction of the French navy and loss of her colonies ibid.
State of St. Domingo at this period ibid.
Toussaint L'Ouverture, and the decree of the national convention ibid.
This colony imitates the revolutionary proceedings in France 427
Sketch of the history of St. Domingo ibid.
Society of the “Amis des Noirs,” in Paris ibid.

Contest between the Negroes and planters 428
Horrible issue of the contest ibid.
The British invade St. Domingo ibid.
Abolition of slavery in the island ibid.
Napoleon sends out an expedition to regain the island to France ibid.
His mistaken policy in this attempt 429
The inhabitants repel the French aggression ibid.
Horrible cruelties exercised by the French ibid.
The negroes expel the invaders—death of general Le Clerc ibid.
The French entrap Toussaint and convey him to France 430
He is conveyed to the dungeons of Besançon, where he ends his days ibid.
Comparison between his fate and that of Napoleon ibid.
State of Europe during the short peace 1802—3 ibid.
Conduct of the first consul not calculated to render it permanent ibid.
Compels England to look to her own safety 431
She declines to give up Malta, according to the treaty of Amiens ibid.
Reasons on which this refusal was grounded ibid.
Napoleon insists on the English evacuating the island ibid.
He makes many and loud complaints against England 432
Lord Hawkesbury's reply to these ibid.
The English newspapers a source of grievance to Napoleon 433
Discussions between the two governments ibid.
General Andressi's letter to lord Hawkesbury ibid.
Napoleon betrays great ignorance of the English constitution ibid.
His message to lord Whitworth, 17th of February, 1803 ibid.
Their interview; and substance of Napoleon's speech 434
He reviews the existing relations between the two countries ibid.
CONTENTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Preparations for war in the ports of France and Holland</td>
<td>434</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon’s apology for these</td>
<td>435</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He threatens England, unless she gave up Malta</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lord Whitworth and Napoleon at the levee!</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Continued negotiations respecting Malta</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon makes a fresh proposition</td>
<td>436</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lord Whitworth quits Paris and arrives in London 13th of May</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>War declared on the following day</td>
<td>ibid.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

LETTER II.

History of Europe from the recommencement of hostilities—Change of ministry in England, and Mr. Pitt’s return to power—Insurrection in Ireland—Affairs of France—Conspiracy to assassinate the first consul—Arrest of the duke d’Enghein—Napoleon assumes the Imperial dignity, and is crowned by the Pope—War between Great Britain and Spain, A.D. 1803—1804.

England prepares for the war                                         436
Mr. Sheridan’s remarks on the conduct of the first consul            437
The French épopée, 22nd of February 1803                             ibid.
English pride wounded by their gasconade!                             ibid.
The king’s message to parliament, 8th of March                      ibid.
Its reception by the two houses and the country                       ibid.
Mr. Fox’s speech on the prospect of renewed hostilities              ibid.
He moves an address to the king, which is supported by Mr. Pitt      439
Admiral Linois sails from Brest for the East Indies                  ibid.
Preparations for war in France                                        ibid.
The French general Mortier seizes Hanover                            ibid.
All the English in France are put under arrest                       ibid.
Insurrection in Ireland—death of lord Kilwarden                      440
Habeas Corpus act suspended there and the insurrection quashed       ibid.
Blockade of the Elbe and Weser by British ships                      ibid.
Means by which the French treasury was now replenished               ibid.
A. D. 1804. Mr. Pitt succeeds Mr. Addington in office                ibid.
He forms a new administration, excluding Mr. Fox and his friends     ibid.
Lord Grenville declines joining him and protests against his conduct 441
List of the new ministry                                             ibid.
Discovery of a plot to subvert the consular government               ibid.
Names of the parties implicated therein                               ibid.

LETTER III.

Arrest of the duke d’Enghein on neutral territory                   442
He is tried at Vincennes, condemned and shot                         ibid.
Preparations or constituting Buonaparte emperor of France            ibid.
Detail of proceedings between him and his senate                     ibid.
Carnot boldly opposes the project                                     443
Reflections on his intrepid conduct                                   ibid.
The empire proclaimed at St. Cloud, 18th of May, 1804                 ibid.
Complimentary conduct of the clergy                                   ibid.
Application to Rome to assist at the coronation                       ibid.
His holiness’s obsequious letter of compliance                        444
Detail of the splendid ceremony                                       ibid.
The emperor of Russia remonstrates on the arrest of d’Enghein       ibid.
Napoleon sets him at defiance                                         ibid.
The Russian charge d’affaires quits Paris                             ibid.
The emperor of Russia appeals to the diet of Ratisbon                445
The kings of England and Sweden strengthen his appeal               ibid.
Negotiations between France and Russia                                ibid.
Conduct of Austria and other Germanic powers                          ibid.
A war breaks out between Spain and Great Britain                     ibid.
The grounds of it stated                                               ibid.
England intercepts three Spanish bullion ships                       ibid.
Affecting loss of the Mercedes                                        447
Negotiations between the courts of London and Madrid                  ibid.
Spain is thrown into the arms of France                               ibid.
Seizure of sir George Rumbold, the British charge d’affaires         ibid.
He is brought to Paris, imprisoned, and sent home to England        448
Buonaparte threatens to invade England                                ibid.
Sir Sidney Smith attacks the flotilla at Flushing                    ibid.
Complete failure of the Catamarsans                                   ibid.

Continuation of the history of Europe, from the commencement of the war with Spain to the battle of Trafalgar, 1805—Liberal supplies granted to Mr. Pitt—Impeachment of lord Melville—Change of the continental republics into kingdoms—Napoleon made king of Italy—Third coalition formed against France—Battle of Austerlitz and capture of Vienna—Peace of Pressburg—Naval victory of Trafalgar—Death of lord Nelson, and honours paid to his memory—Death and character of Mr. Pitt.

Napoleon, now emperor of France, makes an overture of peace to George III. 449
CONTENTS.

The British government declines the offer of Mr. Pitt's exertions for prosecuting the war 449
Lord Grenville repudiates the seizure of the Spanish frigates ibid.
Mr. Pitt obtains liberal supplies and compliments the country on its prosperous state ibid.
Lord Melville is detected in an improper use of the public money 450
Mr. Whitbread brings the subject before the commons ibid.
Lord Melville is removed from his majesty's councils ibid.
His impeachment before the lords—his trial—and acquittal 451
He is succeeded in office by lord Barham ibid.
The continental republics converted into kingdoms ibid.
Napoleon crowned king of Italy, and Eugene Beauharnois his viceroy ibid.
He returns to Paris and visits the camp of Boulogne ibid.
England fortifies her Martello towers 452
Austria prepares for a renewal of hostilities ibid.
A treaty between England and Russia ibid.
The latter prepares to join her forces to those of Austria ibid.
Napoleon quits the camp of Boulogne to put himself at the head of the army ibid.
He passes the Rhine on the Ist of October, and enters Bavaria ibid.
Dispossession of the French armies ibid.
He defeats general Mack and compels him to capitulate ibid.
Prepares to attack the fortress of Ulm, which surrenders ibid.
Napoleon directs his view to Vienna and marches to Munich ibid.
The French army crosses the Inn, and has its head quarters at Lintz ibid.
Arrives at Vienna and the court removes to Brunn 453
Napoleon enters Vienna on the 13th of November ibid.
Military operations in Italy ibid.
Preparations for the battle of Austerlitz ibid.
The three emperors personally engaged in it ibid.
Defeat of the allied powers ibid.
Napoleon's proclamation to his army ibid.
Peace of Presburg, 26th of December, 1805 ibid.
Cessions made to France and her allies by this treaty ibid.
Napoleon's return to Paris covered with laurels ibid.
A French fleet sails from Brest and Toulon for Cadiz ibid.
Lord Nelson proceeds in pursuit of them ibid.
He arrives at the mouth of the Nile but fails to find them 455
He returns to Europe, and sails for the West Indies 455
At Barbadoes he gains information of Nelson visits Grenada, Martinique, and Antigua but without success ibid.
He returns to Europe in pursuit of them ibid.
Str. It. Calder falls in with the combined fleet and captures two Spanish ships ibid.
The public complain and he demands a court martial 456
Lord Nelson arrives in London and is again sent to sea ibid.
He entices the combined fleets out of Cadiz ibid.
Preparations for the battle of Trafalgar, 21st of October, 1805 ibid.
Details of this memorable action 457
Results of this decisive victory ibid.
Death of lord Nelson ibid.
His obsequies and funeral honours ibid.
Lord Collingwood succeeds to the command of the channel fleet 458
He sends all the wounded of the enemy to the Spanish hospitals ibid.
Illness and death of the Right Honourable William Pitt ibid.
Estimate of his character and talents as a statesman 459
Funeral honours and eulogy on his memory ibid.

LETTER IV.

History of the affairs of Europe during the year 1806—Consolidation of the power of Napoleon—Administration of Mr. Fox and lord Grenville—Progress of the war—Abolition of the slave trade—Expedition to South America—Napoleon erected into a kingdom under Joseph Buonaparte—Battle of Maida—New constitution formed for Holland and Louis Buonaparte created king—Negotiations for peace—Death and character of Mr. Fox—rupture between France and Prussia—Battles of Suttsfeld, Schon, and Auerstadt—Capture of Berlin—Conquest of Silicia—Berlin decrees—Renewal of war between Russia and France—Battles of Pultusk and Eylau—Capture of Dantzic, Friedland, and Königsberg—Peace of Tilsit, July 7th, 1807.

Review of the state of Europe at the close of 1805 460
The Republican calendar of France, exchanged for the common one, 1st of January, 1806 ibid.
Napoleon creates a batch of new kingdoms and appoints their monarchs ibid.
Confederation of the Rhine, July the 12th 1806 ibid.
CONTENTS.

The French army enters Lisbon ibid.
The Braganza family arrive in Brazil, 19th of January, 1808 488
Manifesto of Charles IV. of Spain, 30th of October, 1807 ibid.
Treaty concluded between France and Spain ibid.
Declining state of the Spanish monarchy 489
Napoleon meditates its total subversion ibid.
Proclamation under which he deceives the court of Madrid ibid.
Explosion of the revolutionary volcano, March 1808 ibid.
Mysterious conduct of the court and royal family ibid.
Insurrection at Madrid—escape of the prince of Peace ibid.
Proclamation of the king—dismission of the prince of Peace 490
Charles IV. abdicates in favour of his son Frederick ibid.
The French army in possession of Madrid ibid.
Buonaparte allures Charles and Frederick to meet him at Bayonne ibid.
Remarks on their infatuated conduct ibid.
Its consequences deplorable throughout the country ibid.
The grand duke of Berg constituted lieutenant general of Spain 491
Napoleon develops his plot—he prevails on the royal family to sign a formal abdication ibid.
Imperial decree of the 25th of May ibid.
Joseph Buonaparte receives the crown of Spain ibid.
Manner of introducing the French armies into Spain ibid.
Imitate of the number of the French troops in Spain and Portugal 492
Rise of the Spanish patriots ibid.
A declaration of war issued against France ibid.
Proceedings of the council of Seville ibid.
General Castanos appointed commander-in-chief ibid.
Surrender of the French squadron in Cadiz ibid.
Defeat of the French army near Almanza 493
General Moncey repulsed at Valencia ibid.
The patriots destroy his army in its retreat ibid.
The French attack Saragossa, and are repulsed ibid.
Dreadful loss of the French in this instance ibid.
The Spanish general Cuesta defeated near Benevento ibid.
Castanos defeats Dupont in Andalusia ibid.
Surrender of Dupont and his whole army, 20th of July ibid.
Proclamation of king Joseph and his entrance into Madrid 494

He retires from Madrid after seven days 494
The French retreat towards Vittoria ibid.
Estimate of their loss during the past two months ibid.
Return of ten thousand troops from Fuen to Spain ibid.
Patriotic exertions appear in Portugal ibid.
The French are driven out of Oporto ibid.
Junot concentrates his troops about Lisbon ibid.
The British government resolve on assisting the patriots 495
Want of concert among the provincial juntas ibid.
Jealousy of British interference ibid.
Sir A. Welle-ley proceeds to Portugal with fourteen thousand men ibid.
He drives the French from the heights of Rolica ibid.
Death of colonel Lake, and loss of the British ibid.
Junot attacks the British army at Vimeiro 496
The French are repulsed by the bayonet ibid.
Convention of Cintra, and surrender of the Russian fleet ibid.
The terms of the convention disapproved in England ibid.
Sir John Moore proceeds to Salamanca, 26th of October ibid.
Sir David Baird lands with an army at Corunna, October the 13th ibid.
He arrives at Astorga, 19th of November ibid.
Napoleon arrives in Spain to conduct the war ibid.
Madrid given up to pillage and plunder 497
Napoleon orders an assault on the suburbs ibid.
Madrid surrenders to him, December the 4th ibid.
He hastens to intercept the retreat of the English ibid.
Advance of Sir John Moore to Sahagan ibid.
Whence he retreats precipitately through Galicia ibid.
Napoleon disappointed resigns to others the pursuit of the British ibid.
Disastrous retreat of the British troops to Corunna ibid.
Their arrival, 11th of January 1809, where are no transports ibid.
Advanced guard of the French arrive at Betanzos, 12th of January, 1809 ibid.
Preparations for an engagement between the armies 498
The French are completely repulsed with the bayonet ibid.
Death of general Sir John Moore ibid.
The British re-embark and return to England ibid.
LETTER VII.

State of affairs in the north of Europe, A. D. 1808—Russia and Denmark attack Sweden—Extravagant conduct of the king of Sweden, Gustavus IV.—His dethronement—Is succeeded by the duke of Sueremia, Charles XIII.—The Pope refuses the dictation of Napoleon, who has him arrested and conveyed prisoner to Avignon—Austria takes advantage of the Peninsula war, and resumes hostilities against France—Battles of Eckmühl and Eslang.—Vienna a second time occupied by the French—Battle of Wagram—Peace again concluded at Vienna, 14th of October, 1809.

Page

Russia continues faithful to the treaty of Tilsit 498
Meeting of Napoleon and Alexander at Erfurth, 27th of September, 1808 ibid.
The empress resolves on making Sweden exclude all British ships from its harbours 499
His Swedish majesty refuses compliance and prepares to resist ibid.
He applies to England for assistance ibid.
A liberal subsidy is granted, and an army of ten thousand men ibid.
Sir John Moore arrives at Gottenburg, May the 17th, 1808 ibid.
He declines to land and brings his troops back ibid.
The Russians take possession of Abo ibid.
And make descents on the islands of Gothland and Aland 500
Armistice concluded in Finland, 27th of September ibid.
The king of Sweden is placed under arrest and committed prisoner to Drottningholm ibid.
A diet assembled, May 1809, and the king's abdication produced ibid.
A new constitution framed—peace made with Russia ibid.
The late king is liberated and retires to Switzerland ibid.
France and Sweden accommodate their differences ibid.
Results of the peace of Tilsit on the continental states ibid.
Review of the empire of France 501
Napoleon seizes the forts of Kehl, Wesel, Cassel, &c. &c. ibid.
His decree of May 1808 501 ibid.
The Pope protests against his conduct ibid.
This followed by an act of excommunication ibid.
Napoleon has him arrested and conveyed prisoner to Avignon ibid.
Murat made king of Naples as Joachim I. 502
The Austrians prepare for war with France ibid.
Napoleon arrives at Ingolstadt to commence the campaign, April the 18th, 1809 502
The archduke Charles takes possession of Ratisbon ibid.
Battle of Eckmühl, April the 22nd ibid.
The Austrians defeated with great slaughter and Ratisbon taken ibid.
Napoleon advances towards Vienna and issues a proclamation * ibid.
The archduke collects his scattered forces and proceeds to Vienna ibid.
Battle of Eslang, May the 21st, a long and severe contest 503
Death of marshal Lannes (duke of Montebello) ibid.
Perilous situation of Napoleon ibid.
The Tyrolese are roused to action under Hoffer ibid.
Military manoeuvres in the north of Germany ibid.
Colonel Shill and the duke of Brunswick exert themselves ibid.
The archduke Ferdinand rouses the Poles ibid.
The archduke John in Italy takes Padua and Vicenza ibid.
The French army cooped up in an island of the Danube ibid.
A bridge is thrown over the river and they make their escape, July the 4th ibid.
Battle of Wagram, July the 6th 504
The French compelled to retreat ibid.
The battle renewed—manoeuvres of the armies ibid.
Error of the Austrians in extending their line too far ibid.
Napoleon takes advantage of it and defeats them ibid.
Retreat of the Austrians to Moravia ibid.
Peace concluded between Austria and France ibid.

LETTER VIII.

Meeting of the British parliament, 19th of January, 1809 504
Debates on the affairs of Portugal and Spain ibid.
Colonel Wardle's charges against the duke of York ibid.
Mr. Perceval's ill-advised plan for discharging of them ibid.
The royal duke's letter to the speaker ibid.
Termination of the investigation ibid.
CONTENTS.

Napoleon's proclamation to the Spanish people 513
The clergy of Spain are roused by it ibid.
Division of the Spanish population into two classes 514
Curious catechism for the use of the Spanish youth ibid.
Hostile spirit towards Napoleon ibid.
Military operations—seige of Saragossa, January the 7th, 1809 ibid.
The place is taken 17th of February—destructive issue ibid.
Rapid succession of disasters in Catalonia ibid.
General Beresford takes command of the Portuguese army ibid.
Arrival of Sir A. Wellesley at Lisbon with British troops ibid.
Soulé evacuates Oporto and retreats into Galicia ibid.
Wellesley joins Cuesta at Oropesa, July the 20th ibid.
Preparations for the battle of Talavera ibid.
The French defeated with the loss of ten thousand men ibid.
Sir Arthur Wellesley created lord Wellington ibid.
The French advance in force and Wellington retires behind the Tagus 516
Marquis Wellesley visits the supreme Junta at Cadiz ibid.
Difference between Cuesta and lord Wellington ibid.
Sir Robert Wilson pushes forward towards Madrid ibid.
Exertions of the Spanish generals to reorganize their armies ibid.
Complaints against the conduct of the Junta ibid.
Proclamation of the Junta, October, 1809 517
They propose the convocation of a representative assembly ibid.
The inhabitants of Gerona defend the castle of Monjuich ibid.
General Blake exerts himself to relieve the place ibid.
Intrepid conduct of the governor, don Alvarez ibid.
Gerona surrenders to the French, December the 10th 518
Venegas superseded in command by the marquis Ariésaga ibid.
The latter defeated by the French with great loss ibid.
Unfavourable termination of the second campaign ibid.

LETTER IX.

Prospective view of the state of parties in Spain—Joseph Buonaparte returns to Madrid—Second campaign in Spain and Portugal, A.D. 1809.

Policy of the latter instanced ibid.

Royal highness retires from the office of generalissimo and Castlereagh accused of trafficking for seat in parliament

diplomacy proceedings thereon ibid.

Curwen's bill, and the speaker's declaration sent of the British naval power at this crisis marks on the narrowness of her plan of operations ibid.

Preparation for an expedition to Walcheren May 1809 ibid.

Armament sets sail July the 28th ibid.

Commissary invested, 13th of August ibid.

render of the place, with five thousand prisoners ibid.

French garrison Antwerp ibid.

ly state of the British troops in Walcheren ibid.

Chatham returns to England, 14th of September ibid.

Buonaparte's exultation at the plight of the English army ibid.

Troops return 23rd of December reflections on the issue ibid.

el between Castlereagh and Canning ibid.

latter secedes from administration ibid.

duke of Portland resigns, and lord Castlereagh 610

Percival attempts to bring in lords Grey and Grenville ibid.

Resondence of those noblemen and reasons for declining office ibid.

Istential arrangements ibid.

oration of the fiftieth year of the king's reign ibid.

Island of Martinique is captured by the British ibid.

Cochrane's gallant exploit near Roselle 511

Collingwood captures the isle of Santa Cruz ibid.

ar admiral Martin destroys a French convoy off the Rhone ibid.

Ioute with the United States of America ibid.

Spaniards resist the terms of this treaty 513
LETTER X.

Domestic affairs of France.—Napoleon repudiates his wife Josephine and marries the daughter of the emperor of Austria—Consequence of this marriage on his politics.—He deposes his brother Louis and annexes Holland to France.—Also Piedmont and the Hanse towns—Hanover annexed to Westphalia—Hermantotte asces the throne of Sweden.—Political affairs of the north of Europe, A. D. 1810.

Page

Napoleon's address to the legislative body December 3d, 1809 518
Reflections on his power and popularity at this moment 519
Josephine bears him no issue and he projects a divorce ibid.
Various projects for providing a heir to the throne ibid.
Fouché intimates to Josephine what is in contemplation 520
Napoleon disavows the communication of Fouché ibid.
His first views directed to the sister of the emperor Alexander ibid.
She declines the offer, and his attention is turned to the house of Austria ibid.
His offer is accepted, and he gives intimation of his intentions ibid.
State of Josephine on its announcement 521
Preparations for the separation ibid.
The divorce carried into effect 522
Arrangements respecting Josephine ibid.
The marriage of Napoleon with Maria Louisa, 11th of March, 1810 ibid.
Amiable character of the latter ibid.
She bears him a son, 11th of March, 1811 523
Review of Napoleon's situation ibid.
He is dissatisfied with the conduct of his brother Louis ibid.
Takes means to displace him from the throne of Holland ibid.
Holland annexed to France—also Piedmont—and the Hanse towns ibid.
Hermantotte ascends the throne of Sweden, August, 1810 ibid.
The new king's address to his subjects Sweden declares war against Great Britain ibid.
The latter takes possession of Anhalt ibid.

LETTER XI.

Affairs of Great Britain, A. D. 1810—Parliamentry inquiry into the expulsion to the Schull—Sir Francis Burdett sent to the Tower—Hosts in the metropolis—Natal expedition and successes.—Derangement of the king, and appointment of a regency, A. D. 1810—11.

Meeting of the British parliament, 524 of January, 1810 524
Points touched upon in the king’s speech 524
Inquiry into the failure of the expedition to Walcheren ibid.
Motion for papers respecting that ill-fated expedition 525
Earl of Chatham's statement presented to the king ibid.
The noble earl resigns his office as master-general of the ordnance ibid.
Proceedings relative to the Walcheren expedition ibid.
Mr. Windham's attack on the newspaper reporters ibid.
Debate at the British Forum ibid.
John Gale Jones committed to Newgate ibid.
Sir Francis Burdett's letter in Cobbett's Weekly Register ibid.
Discussions founded on it in the commons ibid.
A motion is made for committing the baronet to the Tower ibid.
The serjeant-at-arms sent to take him into custody ibid.
Sir Francis disputes the legality of the warrant ibid.
The law officers consulted who declare for its legality ibid.
The honourable baronet resists, and is taken by force to the Tower ibid.
The military insulted by a mob, on whom they fire ibid.
Sir Francis addresses a letter to the speaker, protesting against his commitment ibid.
Liberation of sir Francis, who brings in action against the speaker but fails in it ibid.
The electors of Westminster and freetholders of Middlesex present petitions ibid.
The isles of Bourbon and France taken by the British ibid.
Capture of several French frigates in the Indian seas ibid.
The Dutch settlement of Amboyna taken by the English ibid.
Death of the king's daughter, the princess Amelia, November the 2nd, 1810 ibid.
Illness of the king and consequent derangement ibid.
Appointment of a regency ibid.

LETTER XII.

Progress of the war in the Peninsula—third campaign, 1810—The French reduce Ciudad-Rodrigo, and Almeida, but are repulsed at Buena.—Admirable conduct of lord Wellington—The French severely harassd in Spain—The capture of Seville, but fail in the siege of Cadiz.—Proccedings in Catalonia and Valencia—Meeting of the Cortes—Scheme of reform.—Attempted invasion of Sicily by Murat, A. D. 1810—11.

A. D. 1809. Hopeless cause of Spanish independence 529
CONTENTS.

Advance of the French army, January 1810
General Sebastiani takes Ocana and Málaga
Manifesto of king Joseph 29th of January
Marshal Victor enters Seville, February the 10th
Questionable conduct of the junta
The duke of Albuquerque marches to Cádiz
British troops received into the isle of Leon
Resignation of the supreme junta
Soulé summons Cádiz to surrender, 10th of February
Albuquerque defends the place during the whole year 1810
Proceedings of general Blake in Murcia ibid.
Expedition from Cádiz to Moguer ibid.
Warfare of the Guerillas annoying to the French
Military operations in Portugal ibid.
General Hill defeats a French corps at Arroyo del Molino ibid.
The French also gain possession of Almeida ibid.
Lord Wellington commences operations, February 1810 ibid.
He determines to avoid general actions ibid.
And to render the country inhospitable to the enemy ibid.
His proclamation of August the 4th ibid.
Massena strives to force him to battle ibid.
Situation of the armies at the end of the campaign ibid.
Meeting of the Spanish Cortes 24th of September, 1810 ibid.
Declaration of their object in assembling ibid.
Decree respecting the freedom of the press ibid.
Proceedings of Miranda in South America ibid.
Review of the state of the Spanish colonies ibid.
Murat, king of Naples, attempts to invade Sicily ibid.
Is successfully opposed by sir John Stewart ibid.

LETTER XIII.

Commencement of the campaign 1811 534
Suchet captures Tortosa—death of the marquis Romana ibid.
Sir Thomas Graham disembarks a body of troops at Algeciras ibid.

LETTER XIV.

Affairs of Great Britain, A. D. 1811—12 Parliamentary discussions on the king's indisposition—Turbulent conduct of the Irish Catholics—Re-instatement of the duke of York, as commander-in-chief—Lord Sidmouth defeated in his attempt to restrict the Toleration Act—Affairs of Great Britain and America—Naval operations—Disturbances in the manufacturing districts of England—Attempt on the part of the Prince Regent to conciliate the whigs—Assassination of Mr. Spencer Percival—Negotiations for a new administration.

Proceedings in parliament on the regency bill
CONTENTS.

The ministers in a minority 541
Motion of censure on the conduct of the lord chancellor ibid.
The Irish Catholics are clamorous for their rights ibid.
The trial of Dr. Sheridan in Dublin ibid.
Re-statement of the duke of York in the command of the army ibid.
Parliamentary proceedings thereon 543
Lord Auckland and the Toleration Act ibid.
Negotiations between Great Britain and America ibid.
Capture of the island of Java by the British 544
Gallant exploit on the coast of Dalmatia ibd.
Captain Schomburg defeats a French squadron off Madagascar ibid.
Destructive effects of a hurricane ibid.
Severe commercial embarrassment, at the close of 1811 545
Riots in the manufacturing districts ibid.
A D. 1812, Meeting of parliament 7th of January ibid.
Expected change in the administration not realized 546
The Regent's letter to the duke of York ibd.
Lords Grey and Grenville decline office ibid.
Bellingham assassinates Mr. Percival ibd.
The earl of Liverpool raised to the premiership ibid.
Negotiations for a more efficient administration 547
Leading members of the cabinet ibid.

LETTER XV.

Peninsular war of 1812—fourth campaign continued—Capture of Ciudad- Rodrigo by the allies—Surrender of Badajos—Retreat of Skaut and Marmont—Battle of Salamanca—The allies enter Madrid—The French abandon the siege of Cadiz—Lord Wellington unsuccessful in the siege of Burgos—he retreats to Freynada, November 1812 547
Military operations in the Peninsula 547
Unsuccessful attempt of the French to carry Murcia ibid.
Lord Wellington invests Ciudad-Rodrigo January 1812 ibid.
Losses of the British army in its capture ibid.
The British invest Badajos, and are successful 549
Precipitate retreat of Skaut and Marmont ibid.
The French are driven from the province of Estremadura ibid.
The British destroy the bridge of Almáredez ibid.
Lord Wellington pursues Marmont and advances to Torres ibid.
The British take Salamanca ibid.
Retreat of Marmont behind the Douro ibid.

LETTER XVI.

Recommencement of hostilities between France and Russia, 1812—Immense preparations of Napoleon for the campaign—Retreat of the Russian army from the Vistula to the Dvina—Advance of the French army to Smolensko—Conflagration of the town—Battle of Borodino—Napoleon pushes his army to Moscow—The Russians set fire to the city—Dreadful proceedings there—Distress to which the French army is reduced for want of supplies—Napoleon uses in vain for an armistice—The grand army commences its retreat—pursued by the Russians—Annihilation of the French army.

Introductory observations 552
The new king of Sweden breaks with France ibid.
Negotiations between Russia, Sweden, and England ibid.
Speculations founded on the existing state of Europe ibid.
Alexander and Napoleon compared in their dispositions and habits 553
Napoleon moves his troops into the interior of Germany ibid.
Russia prepares to meet the impending storm ibid.
The latter concludes a peace with the Turks ibid.
Napoleon quits Paris May the 8th 1812 ibid.
He arrives at Ments—Wurtzburgh—Freiberg—and Dresden ibid.
He quits Dresden, May the 29th and on the 6th of June passes the Vistula 554
He publishes a declaration of his intentions respecting Poland, &c. ibid.
His fruitless negotiations with Russia ibid.
Progress and termination of the war, A. D. 1812—1813—Lord Wellington prosecutes his successes in Spain—fifth campaign—He drives the enemy before him and enters the French territory—Reaction in the internal state of France—Symptoms of a falling empire—Glance at the affairs of Sweden—Denmark—Norway—Prussia—and Austria—The Russians invade France, and defeat the French armies—Discomfiture of Napoleon, who rejects overtures of peace from the allies—and dissolves the legislative assembly, December the 31st, 1812—Campaign of the first three months of 1813—Progress of the allied arms—Surrender of Paris—Abdication of Napoleon who returns to Elba—Rejections.

Proceedings of the British parliament, November, 1812

Commencement of the Peninsular campaign, 1813

Suchet is repulsed and retires upon Vil- lena

Movements of Lord Wellington and the British army

Sir John Murray invests Tarragona

He retreats at the approach of Suchet

Marshal Soult takes the command of the French army

Sir Thomas Graham besieges St. Sebastian

The place capitulates on the 18th of September

Lord Wellington enters France, 17th of October, 1813

Surrender of Tampeluna, 31st of October

He drives the French from the encampments at Payenne

Wellington crosses the Nievre

Review of the situation of Napoleon at the close of 1812

Military movements of the continental powers, January 1813

Particulars of the campaign of the first three months

Proclamation of the allied sovereigns from Frankfort, 1st of December 1812

How met by the emperor of France

Napoleon and his council at issue

He quits Paris, 21st of January 1813 for his decisive campaign

The allied armies invade France at all points

The Austrians and Prussians form a junction

Napoleon deserted by all his allies

He marches into Champagne to meet his opponents

His intrepid and successful movements at this juncture
CONTENTS.

Every thing depends upon his personal presence 565
His adversaries press upon him on all sides ibid.
He forms a bold project, but is unable to execute it ibid.
The allied armies advance upon Paris ibid.
The State of Paris at this juncture ibid.
The allies are under the walls of Paris, March the 30th 566
Proclamation of prince Swartzenberg ibid.
The French troops rally for the defence of Paris ibid.
The latter send a flag of truce, which is accepted ibid.
Count Nesselrode, the Russian minister, enters Paris ibid.
The French troops evacuate Paris, 31st of March ibid.
Declaration of the emperor of Russia ibid.
Convocation of the Senate, April the 1st ibid.
Reflections on its singular proceedings ibid.
Napoleon learns that Paris has capitulated 567
He sends plenipotentiaries to the allied sovereigns ibid.
He renounces the thrones of France and Italy, 11th of April, 1813 ibid.
He accepts the island of Elba as his future residence ibid.
Reflections on his rise and fall ibid.

LETTER XVIII.

Affairs of Great Britain—War with the United States—Revocation of the Bourbons, and Napoleon’s exile to Elba—Ferdinand’s liberation and return to Madrid—His ill-advised measures—State and condition of France, from the abdication of Napoleon to his reappearance in that country, A.D. 1813—1815.

Existing difference between England and America 568
A.D. 1812. America declares war against Great Britain ibid.
Canada the object of acquisition with the former ibid.
They invade Canada, but are very unsuccessful ibid.
Naval engagements between the two powers 569
A.D. 1813. Military operations in Canada ibid.
Attack of the Americans on Fort George—May the 27th ibid.
Proceedings on lake Ontario, and lake Champlain 570
Continued operations in the province of Canada ibid.
The British fleet blockades the Chesapeake ibid.
Operations of Sir S. Beckwith and admiral Cochrane ibid.
Action between the Shannon and Chesapeake 571
Admiral Fremanzle attacks Fiume, in the gulf of Venice ibid.
Continuation of the American contest ibid.
Military operations in Canada ibid.
The British navy ascends the Patuxent 572
General Ross marches a body of troops towards Washington ibid.
They enter and burn the city 573
 Destruction of Fort Washington ibid.
Proclamation of the American President ibid.
The British meditate an attack on Baltimore ibid.
Death of general Ross and eulogy on his character ibid.
The British suspend their attack on Baltimore ibid.
Peace concluded between England and America 574
The Parissians recommend the recall of Louis XVIII. ibid.
The count d’Artois enters France as lieutenant of the realm ibid.
He signs the convention of Paris ibid.
Louis XVIII. repairs to London and is received with eclat ibid.
Proceeds to Dover the 24th of April and is conveyed to Calais ibid.
Declaration of St. Owen, May the 2nd ibid.
He enters Paris May the 3rd 575
Napoleon in the island of Elba ibid.
Ferdinand of Spain returns to Madrid ibid.
Cautions conduct of the council of state ibid.
Unwise conduct on the part of Ferdinand 576
State of France after the return of the Bourbons ibid.
Negotiations between France and the allied powers ibid.
The allied sovereigns visit England, June 1814 577
Reflections on their visit and reception ibid.

LETTER XIX.

State of France after the return of the Bourbons—Conduct and pursuits of Napoleon in Elba—He makes his escape and returns to France—Marches into the heart of the country and is received with eclat—Dismay of Louis XVIII. and his court—Napoleon re-instated on the throne of France—Proceedings of the congress of allied sovereigns at Vienna—The outlawed invader proclaims his grievances in justification of his conduct—Attempts to conciliate the nation—Preparations for the renewal of war—A.D. 1814—15.

Introductory reflections and remarks 577
Limits of France under the new order of things ibid.
CONTENTS.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Dissatisfaction of the French with the loss of glory</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon's situation in Elba</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Suspicious conduct about his court</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sir Niel Campbell appointed by England to attend his court</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Account of his interview with the latter ib.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Embarrassing situation of sir Niel Campbell</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He learns that Napoleon has escaped from Elba</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sir Niel sails in pursuit of him</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Risks encountered by Napoleon in his voyage to France</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He disembarks at Cannes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He commences his march</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Conduct of marshals Soult and Macdonell</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>And of colonel Lapedoyere, at Grenoble</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon's conduct on arriving there ib.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The garrison of Grenoble joins the standard of Napoleon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Anecdote of the congress of Vienna</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The brothers &amp;c. of Louis XVIII. repair to Lyons and Nismes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Address of Benjamin Constant on Napoleon's return</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Measures of the government</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Disposition of the troops in various places to join him</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon makes his entry into Lyons</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He issues his decrees and nominates his ministers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He reaches Aix-la-Chapelle, March the 17th ib.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>His army accumulates as he advances ib.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dumouy of Louis XVIII. and his ministers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fouché tenders the king his assistance the Marshal Ney appointed to the command of the royal army</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He advances to meet Napoleon and joins his standard ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Louis convokes a general council ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The two armies approach each other ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The last army of the Bourbons joins Napoleon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Louis and his court quits Paris ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>They arrive at Liége—then proceed to Ostend ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon enters Paris amid the shouts of armed columns</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Reflections on this singular event ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Declaration of the congress of Vienna ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A treaty entered into by the allied powers ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon's proclamation and measures of defence</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

LETTER XX.

Preparations for the renewal of war—Napoleon's plan of the campaign. Reviews his grand army, 14th of June—Battle of Ligny, 16th of June—Retreat of the British on Waterloo—Description of the field of Waterloo—The English army takes up its position, on the 17th, and the French on the following morning—Relative strength of the two armies—Plans of the generals—Battle of Waterloo commences—Ney's charge at the head of the guards—His repulse—Advance of the British army—Napoleon's orders for a retreat—Behaviour of Napoleon during the battle—Blucher's pursuit of the French—Loss of the British—and of the French, June 1814.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>British troops collected in Belgium</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lord Wellington arrives at Brussels to take the command</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A Prussian army arrives at Namur</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon quits Paris, June the 12th ib.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Estimate of the respective forces</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Disposition of the allied armies</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon's address to his army</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The French army in motion June the 15th ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Development of Napoleon's plan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The rapidity of his marches defeats his purpose</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lord Wellington leaves Brussels ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hastily collects his re-inforcements ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Napoleon attacks the Prussian position at Ligny, June the 16th</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Two distinct battles fought on that day ib.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The first engagement not decisive, and Napoleon changes his point of attack ib.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Blucher's horse is shot under him, and himself rode over ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He escapes and is re-mounted, but loses the field ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Estimated loss on either side</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marshal Ney attacks Wellington at Quatre Bras, June the 16th</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Wellington hears of Blucher's retreat, and takes a retrograde movement ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He arrives at the field of Waterloo, on the evening of June the 16th</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The position of the British army</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Relative position of the British and Prussian armies</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Communication between Blucher and Wellington</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Preparations for the grand action</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Situation of Napoleon, on the 17th</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Position of the British force described ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Commencement of the battle, at noon of the 18th of June</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jérôme Bonaparte attacks the post of Hougomont ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>He drives out of it the troops of Nassau</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The place retaken by the British ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The French attack the British centre, but every where repulsed ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Another grand attack sustained by generals Pack and Picton ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The French columns are broken with great slaughter and two eagles taken ibid.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The British cavalry get involved—death of general Picton</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
CONTENTS.

The French get possession of La Haye Sainte—but are again expelled 593
The French cavalry attack the British in another quarter ibid.
Manner in which they were received by the British ibid.
Frantic valour of the French cavalry at this crisis ibid.
They are totally destroyed by the British 594
Napoleon's account in his bulletin ibid.
Movements of the Prussians under Bülow and Blücher ibid.
Their march impeded by several circumstances ibid.
They begin to arrive at the field of battle about half past six 595
Napoleon prepares his reserved guard for the decisive blow ibid.
Napoleon forms his guard in two columns—his last address ibid.
Wellington makes a gradual change in his line to receive them ibid.
Description of the battle ibid.
The British sustain this tremendous attack of the guards unmoved ibid.
The French repulsed attempt to deploy ib.
Wellington orders his troops to advance ib.
The French completely routed—Ney's horse killed under him ibid.
The British and Prussian armies come into contact 596
The two armies celebrate the victory with loud cheers ibid.
The Prussians follow up the pursuit of the enemy ibid.
Napoleon's situation described during the battle ibid.
His behaviour and remarks on the issue ib.
Blücher puts the finishing stroke to the proceedings of the day ibid.
The duke of Wellington's account of his losses ibid.
Conclusion of this woeful tragedy ibid.

LETTER XXXI.

Napoleon vanquished returns to Paris 557

He assembles the council of state—a dictatorship recommended 597
La Fayette's motion against dissolving the representative body ibid.
Abdication of Napoleon, 22nd of June ibid.
A provisional government appointed ibid.
A commission nominated to treat with the allies for peace ibid.
Napoleon issues a farewell address to the army ibid.
He proposes to retire to America and sets out for Rochefort 29th of June ibid.
He arrives at Rochefort, July the 3d, but finds the port blockaded 598
Sends a flag of truce to captain Maitland of the Bellerophon ibid.
Addresses a letter to the prince Regent of England ibid.
The British cabinet appoint St. Helena to be his future residence ibid.
He is removed from the Bellerophon to the Northumberland ibid.
And proceeds to St. Helena ibid.
His behaviour there—his illness—and death ibid.
Estimate of his character and talents 599
Wellington and Blücher enter the French territory ibid.
The duke issues a proclamation to the people of France ibid.
He takes Cambray, and Louis XVIII removes thither ibid.
The allies propose to invest Paris ibid.
Blücher establishes himself on the left of the Seine ibid.
The Parisians propose a cessation of hostilities ibid.
A convention entered into, July the 3d—its stipulations ibid.
The chambers are closed by the military, and Louis again placed on the throne 600
The treaty of the Holy Alliance ratified at Paris 26th of September, 1815 ibid.
Circumstances under which Louis XVIII resumes the crown ibid.
Discontents prevalent among his subjects ibid.
The allies stipulate for the restoration of Napoleon's spoliations ibid.
Decision of the congress of Vienna—the cessions required of France 601
Louis disposed to adopt a popular system of government ibid.
He issues directions for the abolition of the slave trade ibid.
Change of policy in the king's measures ibid.
Thirty eight peers dispossessed of their dignity ibid.
Labehoyere shot, and marshal Ney arrested and tried ibid.
Discussions occasioned by Ney's trial ibid.
Wellington appealed to who signs his death warrant 602
He is executed December the 15th, 1815 ibid.
Soutl defends himself and escapes ibid.
LETTER XXII.

Internal state of France—Spain—608
The Spanish patriots still on the alert ibid.
Discontented state of the officers ibid.
General Riego joins Quiroga ibid.

LETTER XXIII.

History of Europe continued—Coronation of George IV.—Death of queen Caroline—The king visits Dublin—Hannover—and Scotland—Distress in Ireland and the efforts in England for their relief—Death of lord Castleragh—and reflections on his administration—He is succeeded by Mr. Canning—liberal tone of his politics—His short but brilliant career in office—His premature death—Review of the affairs of Greece and Turkey—Struggles of the Greeks for independence—Navages of the Morea by the Turkish army—Treaty of London, of 1820—Battle of Navarino, and destruction of the Turkish fleet, October, 1827.

Parliamentary proceedings respecting queen Caroline—616
She is awarded an income of fifty thousand pounds a year ibid.
CONTENTS.

Coronation of George IV. July the 19th, 1821 615

The queen is refused admission to the ceremo-

...y 617

Her illness, death, and funeral ibid.

Visit of the king to Ireland—Hanover—and Scotland ibid.

Meeting of Parliament, 1822 ibid.

Discussions on the affairs of Ireland ibid.

Exertions in England to relieve their distress ibid.

Lord Castlereagh dismisses himself from the world 618

He is succeeded by Mr. Canning ibid.

His short and popular administration sketched ibid.

His early and lamented death ibid.

Tyranny of the Turks over the Greeks ibid.

Exertions of the Greek patriots to relieve themselves 619

Detail of affairs in the Morea ibid.

Meeting of three hundred Greek deputies in 1823 ibid.

Success of the Greek patriots 620

Exertions of English patriots to assist them ibid.

Death of lord Byron, at Missolonghi ibid.

Horrible cruelty of the Turks ibid.

Treaty of London, 1826, between England, France, and Russia 621

The Turkish government refuse their mediation ibid.

A combined fleet dispatched to the Mediterranean ibid.

Sir Edward Codrington falls in with the Egyptian fleet at Zante ibid.

He orders them to retire to Navarino, and they comply ibid.

The combined fleet comes to anchor in that harbour ibid.

An unavailing parley takes place—the Turks provoke hostilities ibid.

Battle of Navarino, and destruction of the Turkish fleet ibid.

The three admirals sign a Protocol 622

Conjugal co-operation of the allied fleets on this occasion ibid.

Review of the battle of Navarino ibid.

LETTER XXIV.

Conclusion of the history of European affairs—An English corps defeated by the Ashantees in Western Africa—State of affairs in France—Spain, and Portugal—Prussia—Italy—Austria &c.—Death of Louis XVIII.—Accession of Charles X.—Hurricane on the coast of Great Britain—Foundation of St. Petersburg

...and Cronstadt—Death of the emperor Alexander—His brother the archduke Constantine renounces his succession to the throne—Accession of Nicholas I. A. D. 1824—5.

A. D. 1824. Affair of the Ashantees in Western Africa 623

Death of Sir Charles M’Carthy ibid.

Review of the state of things in France 625

Spain 624

Portugal ibid.

The duke of Angouleme heads an army of seventy thousand men into Spain ibid.

The Spanish Cortes prepare to resist the French 625

The French occupy Madrid and lay siege to Cadiz ibid.

The Portuguese apply to England for assistance ibid.

Conduct of Don Miguel and his father ibid.

Review of the state of affairs in Naples and Piedmont—Prussia—Austria 626

Death of the king of France ibid.

He is succeeded in the throne by Charles X. 627

Review of the reign of Louis XVIII. ibid.

Reflections on the misrule of Ferdinand of Spain ibid.

Tremendous hurricane, November the 19th 628

Its effects at St. Petersburg and Cronstadt ibid.

On the southern coast of England ibid.

Sweden, Denmark, and Germany in 1825 629

Death of Maximilian Joseph, king of Bavaria ibid.

Alexander emperor of Russia, convokes a diet at Warsaw ibid.

Declining state of the emperor’s health ibid.

He dies at his palace of Tanger, ibid.

Estimate of his character and review of his reign 630

Proceedings at St. Petersburg at the time of his death ibid.

Abdication of his brother Constantine ibid.

His younger brother Nicholas ascends the throne 631

Some dissatisfaction manifested on the part of the army ibid.

General Miloradovitch is assassinated ibid.

The two brothers of Nicholas interpose and quiet the military 632

Proclamation of the emperor Nicholas, 2nd of January, 1826 ibid.

Count Nesselrode’s circular to foreign courts ibid.