INDEX OF FIRST LINES

A handful of dust could hide your signal . . . . 178
A message came from my youth of vanished days . . . . 260
A painter was selling pictures at the fair . . . . 427
A smile of mirth spread over the sky . . . . 189
A wandering madman was seeking the touchstone . . . . 132
Accept me, my lord, accept me for this while . . . . 271
Age after age hast Thou, O Lord, sent Thy messengers . . . . 450
Ah me, why did they build my house . . . . 92
Ah, poet, the evening draws near . . . . 90
Ah, these jasmines . . . . 82
Ah, who was it coloured that little flock . . . . 54
Alas, I cannot stay in the house . . . . 179
All that I had I gave to you . . . . 420
Amidst the rush and roar of life . . . . 128
An unbelieving smile flits on your eyes . . . . 116
Are you a mere picture . . . . 261
Art thou abroad on this stormy night . . . . 12
At midnight the would-be ascetic announced . . . . 140
At the sleepy village the noon was still . . . . 433
At this time of my parting, wish me good luck . . . . 44

Be not concerned about her heart, my heart . . . . 408
Be ready to launch forth, my heart! . . . . 179
Beautiful is thy wristlet, decked with stars . . . . 26
Bid me and I shall gather my fruits . . . . 177
Bless this little heart . . . . 83
Bring beauty and order into my forlorn life, woman . . . . 201
By all means they try to hold me secure . . . . 15

Child, how happy you are sitting in the dust . . . . 60
Clouds heap upon clouds . . . . 10
"Come and hire me", I cried . . . . 86
Come as you are; do not loiter over your toilet . . . . 98
Come, Spring, reckless lover of the earth . . . . 429

567
Come to my garden walk, my love
"Come to us, youth, tell us truly"
Comrade of the road
Darkly you sweep on, Eternal Fugitive
Day after day he comes and goes away
Day after day, O lord of my life
Day by day I float my paper boats
Days were drawing out as the winter ended
Death, thy servant, is at my door
Deity of the ruined temple! The broken strings
Deliverance is not for me in renunciation
Do not go, my love, without asking my leave
Do not keep to yourself the secret of your heart, my friend
Do you hear the tumult of death afar
Dying, you have left behind you the great sadness
Early in the day it was whispered
Endlessly varied art thou in the exuberant world
Ever in my life have I sought thee
Far below flowed the Jumna
Fiercely they rend in pieces the carpet woven during ages of prayer
Free me as free are the birds of the wilds
Free me from the bonds of your sweetness, my love!
Freedom from fear is the freedom I claim for you
From His eternal seat Christ comes down
Give me the supreme courage of love
Hands cling to hands and eyes linger on eyes
Have mercy upon your servant, my queen!
Have you not heard his silent steps?
He came and sat by my side
He it is, the innermost one
He whispered, "My love, raise your eyes"
He whom I enclose with my name is weeping
'Here is thy footstool
How often, great Earth, have I felt my being yearn
I am glad you will not wait for me.
I am here to sing thee songs.
I am like a remnant of a cloud of autumn.
I am like the night to you, little flower.
I am only waiting for love.
I am restless, I am athirst.
I am small because I am a little child.
I ask for a moment's indulgence.
I asked nothing from thee; I uttered not.
I asked nothing, only stood at the edge of the wood.
I boasted among men that I had known you.
I call her my Krishna flower.
I came nearest to you.
I came out alone on my way.
I cling to this living raft, my body.
I dive down into the depth of the ocean.
I dreamt that she sat by my head.
I feel that all the stars shine in me.
I feel that your brief days of love have not been left behind.
I forgot myself for a moment, and I came.
I found a few old letters of mine.
I had gone a-begging from door to door.
I have come to thee to take thy touch.
I have donned this new robe to-day.
I have got my leave. Bid me farewell.
I have had my invitation.
I have kissed this world with my eyes and my limbs.
I have looked on this picture in many a month of March.
I have met thee where the night touches the edge of the day.
I have seen thee play thy music.
I hid myself to evade you.
I hold her hands and press her to my breast.
I hunt for the golden stag.
I know not from what distant time.
I know not how thou singest, my master!
I know that at the dim end of some day.
I know that the day will come when my sight.
I know that this life, missing its ripeness in love.
I know thee as my God and stand apart.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Line</th>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>I lived on the shady side of the road</td>
<td>276</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I long to go over there</td>
<td>69</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I long to speak the deepest words</td>
<td>117</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I love you, beloved</td>
<td>112</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I must launch out my boat</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I often wonder where lie hidden</td>
<td>143</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I only said, &quot;When in the evening&quot;</td>
<td>61</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I paced alone on the road across the field</td>
<td>51</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I plucked your flower, O world</td>
<td>127</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I remember a day in my childhood</td>
<td>136</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I remember my childhood</td>
<td>281</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I remember the day</td>
<td>416</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I remember the scene on the barren heath</td>
<td>435</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I run as a musk-deer runs in the shadow of the forest</td>
<td>102</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I shall gladly suffer the pride of culture to die out in my house</td>
<td>258</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I spent my day on the scorching hot dust of the road</td>
<td>131</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I think I shall stop startled if ever we meet</td>
<td>418</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I thought I should ask of thee—but I dared not</td>
<td>25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I thought I would write love's words in their own colour</td>
<td>421</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I thought that my voyage had come to its end</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I travelled the old road every day</td>
<td>262</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I try to weave a wreath all the morning</td>
<td>115</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I want to give you something, my child</td>
<td>84</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I was not aware of the moment</td>
<td>44</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I was one among many women</td>
<td>126</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I was to go away; still she did not speak</td>
<td>417</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I was walking along a path overgrown with grass</td>
<td>426</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I was walking by the road, I do not know why</td>
<td>101</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I will deck thee with trophies</td>
<td>45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I will meet one day the Life within me</td>
<td>185</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I will utter your name, sitting alone</td>
<td>216</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I wish I could take a quiet corner</td>
<td>58</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I woke and found his letter with the morning</td>
<td>177</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I would ask for still more</td>
<td>255</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>If baby only wanted to, he could fly</td>
<td>53</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>If I were living in the royal town of Ujjain</td>
<td>407</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>If I were only a little puppy</td>
<td>72</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>If it is not my portion to meet thee</td>
<td>37</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Lest I should know you too easily, you play with me
Let all the strains of joy mingle in my last song
Let me not pray to be sheltered from dangers
Let my song be simple as the waking in the morning
Let only that little be left of me
Let thy love play upon my voice
Let your work be, bride
Life of my life, I shall ever try
Light, my light, the world-filling light
Light, oh, where is the light?
Like a child that frets and pushes away its toys
Like fruit, shaken free by an impatient wind
Listen, my heart, in his flute is the music
Love, my heart longs day and night

Make me thy poet, O Night

Maybe there is one house in this city
Mother, I do want to leave off my lessons now
Mother, I shall weave a chain of pearls
Mother, let us imagine we are travelling
Mother, the folk who live up in the clouds
Mother, the light has grown grey
Mother, your baby is silly!
My bonds are cut, my debts are paid
My desires are many and my cry is pitiful
My eyes feel the deep peace of this sky
My heart, the bird of the wilderness
My king was unknown to me
My life when young was like a flower
My love, once upon a time your poet launched a great epic in his mind
My Master has bid me while I stand at the roadside
My night has passed on the bed of sorrow
My portion of the best in this world will come from your hands

My song has put off her adornments
My songs are like bees
Neither mother nor daughter are you, nor bride
No guest had come to my house for long
No: it is not yours to open buds into blossoms. 183
No more noisy, loud words from me 42
No, my friends, I shall never be an ascetic 119
None lives for ever, brother 134
Not for me is the love that knows no restraint 208

O fire, my brother, I sing victory to you 196
O fool, to try to carry thyself 6
O mad, superbly drunk 118
O mother, the young Prince is to pass by our door 94
O that I were stored with a secret 407
O Thou the last fulfilment of life 42
O woman, you are not merely the handiwork of God 128
O you shaggy-headed banyan tree 82
Obstinate are the trammels 13
On many an idle day have I grieved 38
On the day when death will knock at thy door 42
On the day when the lotus bloomed 10
On the seashore of endless worlds 51
On the slope of the desolate river among tall grasses 30
On this side of the water there is no landing 412
One morning in the flower garden a blind girl came 128
Our Lane is tortuous 438
Our life sails on the uncrossed sea 426
Over the green and yellow rice-fields 147
Over the relic of Lord Buddha King Bimbisār built a shrine 198

Peace, my heart, let the time for the parting be sweet 128
Pick up this life of mine from the dust 273
Pluck this little flower 5
Prisoner, tell me, who was it 15

Raidas, the sweeper, sat still 454
Reverend sir, forgive this pair of sinners 120

Sanātan was telling his beads by the Ganges 187
Say of him what you please 59
She dwelt here by the pool 257
She dwelt on the hillside 145
She is near to my heart 255
She is our own, the darling of our hearts, Santiniketan 457

573
She is still a child, my lord.
She went away when the night was about to wane.
She who ever had remained in the depth.
“Sire”, announced the servant to the King.
Speak to me, my love!
Stand before my eyes.
Sudās, the gardener, plucked from his tank the last lotus.
Sullen clouds are gathering.
Supposing I became a champa flower.
Take back your coins, King’s Councillor.
Take your holiday, my boy.
Tell me if this be all true, my lover.
That I should make much of myself.
That I want thee, only thee.
The beggar in me lifted his lean hands.
The bird of the morning sings.
The boat of the boatman Madhu.
The Boatman is out crossing the wild sea at night.
The child who is decked with prince’s robes.
The Cloud said to me, “I vanish”.
The clouds thicken.
The crowd listens in wonder to Kashi.
The day came for the image from the temple.
The day is dim with rain.
The day is no more, the shadow is upon the earth.
The day is not yet done, the fair is not over.
The day that stands between you and me makes her last bow of farewell.
The day was when I did not keep myself.
The evening stood bewildered among street lamps.
The evening was lonely for me.
The fair was on before the temple.
The father came back from the funeral rites.
The ferry-boat plies between the two villages.
The General came before the silent and angry King.
The house, lingering on after its wealth has vanished.
The joy ran from all the world to build my body.
The kingfisher sits still on the prow of an empty boat.
The lantern which I carry in my hand.
| The man had no useful work                              | 443 |
| The morning sea of silence broke into ripples          | 22  |
| The name she called me by                              | 425 |
| The night darkened. Our day's works had been done     | 24  |
| The night deepens and the dying flame flickers         | 422 |
| The night is dark and your slumber is deep             | 186 |
| The night is nearly spent waiting for him              | 22  |
| The night was dark when she went away                  | 81  |
| The odour cries in the bud                             | 207 |
| The overflowing bounty of thy grace                   | 452 |
| The pain was great when the strings were being tuned   | 202 |
| The rain fell fast. The river rushed and hissed        | 412 |
| The rain has held back for days and days               | 18  |
| The river is grey and the air dazed with blown sand    | 424 |
| The road is my wedded companion                        | 262 |
| The same stream of life that runs through my veins     | 33  |
| The scrupts of a distant storm                         | 271 |
| The sleep that flits on baby's eyes                    | 52  |
| The song that I came to sing remains unsung            | 8   |
| The spring with its leaves and flowers has come into my body | 212 |
| The sun had set on the western margin of the river     | 209 |
| The sun shone on a far-away morning                    | 451 |
| The tame bird was in a cage                            | 93  |
| The time is past when I could repay her                | 201 |
| The time that my journey takes is long                 | 7   |
| The trumpeter lies in the dust                         | 191 |
| The wall breaks asunder                                | 196 |
| The workman and his wife from the west country         | 142 |
| The world is yours at once and for ever                | 214 |
| The yellow bird sings in their tree                    | 103 |
| Then finish the last song and let us leave             | 123 |
| There are numerous strings in your lute                | 280 |
| There is a looker-on who sits behind my eyes           | 260 |
| There is room for you                                  | 256 |
| They clamour and fight                                 | 85  |
| They knew the way and went to seek you                 | 183 |
| They said that Kabir, the weaver, was favoured of God  | 442 |
| Things throng and laugh loud in the sky                | 265 |
| This is my delight, thus to wait and watch            | 20  |
This is my prayer to thee, my lord. .......................... 17
This is no mere dallying of love between us .............. 195
This song of mine ........................................... 84
Those who walk on the path of pride ....................... 221
Thou art the sky and thou art the nest ...................... 32
Thou hast given me thy love ................................ 272
Thou hast given me thy seat at thy window ............... 282
Thou hast made me endless .................................. 3
Thou hast made me known to friends whom I knew not .... 30
Thou hast taken him to thine arms ......................... 277
Though the evening comes with slow steps ................. 133
Thus it is that thy joy in me is so full ...................... 28
Thy gifts to us mortals fulfil all our needs ............... 35
Thy nature is to forget thyself ............................. 457
Thy sunbeam comes upon this earth of mine ............... 32
Time after time I came to your gate ....................... 188
Time is endless in thy hands, my lord ..................... 38
Timidly I cower'd in the shadow of safety ................. 214
Tired of waiting, you burst your bonds ................... 263
To move is to meet you every moment ..................... 182
To the birds you gave songs .................................. 214
To the guests that must go bid God-speed ................. 120
Traveller, must you go? ....... ............................. 130
"Traveller, where do you go?" ............................... 283
Trust love even if it brings sorrow ........ ................ 109
Tulsidas, the poet, was wandering ......................... 204

Upagupta, the disciple of Buddha, lay asleep ............. 194

We are to play the game of death to-night ................... 144
"What comes from your willing hands I take" ............. 108
What divine drink wouldst thou have, my God ........... 31
"What is there but the sky, O Sun, that can hold thine image?" ......................................................... 208
What music is that in whose measure the world is rocked? 203
When bells sounded in your temple ......................... 280
When from the house of feast I came back home .......... 279
When I awake in thy love .................................... 274
When I bring you coloured toys ............................ 58
When I give up the helm I know that the time has come ... 46
When I go alone at night to my love-tryst
When I go from hence let this be my parting word
When I lingered among my hoarded treasure
When I thought I would mould you
When it was day they came into my house
When like a flaming scimitar
When, mad in their mirth, they raised dust to soil thy robe
When my heart did not miss thee in love, O world
When my play was with thee I never questioned
When she passed by me with quick steps
When storm-clouds rumble in the sky
When the creation was new and all the stars shone
When the gong sounds ten
When the heart is hard and parched up
When the lamp went out by my bed
When the two sisters go to fetch water
When the warriors came out first
When the weariness of the road is upon me
When thou commandest me to sing
When thou savest me the steps are lighter
When we two first met my heart rang out in music
When you hold your lamp in the sky
Whence do you bring this disquiet, my love?
Where do you hurry with your basket
Where dost thou stand behind them all
Where have I come from
Where is heaven? you ask me, my child
Where roads are made I lose my way
Where the mind is without fear
While stepping into the carriage she turned her head
"Who among you will take up the duty of feeding the hungry?"
Who are you, reader, reading my poems
Who is she who dwells in my heart
Who stole sleep from baby's eyes
Why are those tears in your eyes, my child
Why did he choose to come to my door
Why did the lamp go out?
Why do you put me to shame with a look?
Why do you sit there and jingle your bracelets ... 107
Why do you sit there on the floor ... 77
Why do you whisper so faintly in my ears ... 144
"Why these preparations without end?" ... 413
With a glance of your eyes you could plunder ... 143
With days of hard travail I raised a temple ... 138
With his morning songs he knocks at our door ... 279
With the morning he came out to walk roads ... 436
Would you put your wreath of fresh flowers on my neck, fair one? ... 114

Yes, I know, this is nothing but thy love ... 29
You are the evening cloud floating in the sky of my dreams ... 111
You came down from your throne ... 23
You came for a moment to my side ... 205
You did not know yourself when you dwelt alone ... 215
You have made me great with your love ... 419
You have set me among those who are defeated ... 188
You hide yourself in your own glory, my King ... 278
You, in your timeless watch, listen to my approaching steps ... 216
You left me and went on your way ... 121
You, like a rivulet swift and sinuous, laugh and dance ... 410
You say that father writes a lot of books ... 76
You took my hand and drew me to your side ... 180
You walked by the riverside path ... 105
You were in the centre of my heart ... 211
Your days will be full of cares ... 257
Your questioning eyes are sad ... 109
Your speech is simple, my Master ... 182
Yours is the light that breaks forth from the dark ... 206

THE END

Printed in Great Britain by R. & R. Clark, Limited, Edinburgh.